EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

FIFTY thousand majority for Beaver.

THERE is a lull in the sorehead campaign.

THERE may yet be a row over the Suez canal.

VOTERS, see that your name is registered before the 6th of September.

JUST think of a British general up a tree; and yet the cable informs us that General Wood ascended one to see Arabi.

THAT great Jumbo affair, the Brooklyn bridge, has already cost $13,748,083, and the work is still going on.

DEMOCRATIC papers are extremely anxious for Beaver to stop talking, but he won't, for every word he utters demonstrates his superiority over the other candidates.

ACCORDING to the Centre Democrat, it is no more the Democratic party, but "the party of Jefferson and Jackson." The Republican party, however, is owned by no man, dead or alive.

GENERAL BEAVER is more assured now than ever that he will be elected Governor, and every Republican should work until election to make the majority as large as possible.

THE Independent managers are boasting that they will not invite any speakers from other states, as they have enough home talent to carry on the disturbances. But the real reason is that they can find no sympathizers with them in other states.

SENATOR LOGAN, of Illinois, in a recent interview, said of Pennsylvania politics: "I don't recognize any leader so far as that State is concerned. I don't think the Republicans ought to follow anybody, but I do think they ought to support the regular Republican party."

IT IS somewhat strange that the rising of the Nile in Egypt, while not altogether an unmixed blessing, is infinitely preferable to the rising of the Nihilists in Russia. It is a very irony of accident that such a similarity in sound should have so wide a divergence in meaning.

THE Republicans and Independents of Alabama say that in spite of Democratic frauds they made considerable gains in the late state election, and they boast of their thirty-six members of the legislature, having had but six last year. One negro member, it is said, is elected from Madison county by white votes.

THE Harrisburg Patriot says: "We have yet to meet an intelligent Republican who refuses to admit that the Democratic ticket is the best ever offered to the conservative voters for their advocacy and support." Beg pardon, Mr. Patriot; but the Democratic ticket is not offered to the conservative voters for their advocacy and support at all. The conservative voters are those who are disposed to maintain existing institutions, and in Pennsylvania that means true Republicans, who will vote for the regular Republican ticket, which in some respects is better than any ever before put in nomination by either party.

The Garland Case.

The New York Tribune, in a careful and well-considered editorial on the trial now proceeding in Lunenburg, Va., the result of a duel in which one of the principals was killed, speaks in the following strong terms:

"The Garland murder trial goes on with the usual amount of heat and excitement in audience, press and people which always accompany such a case in the Southern States. The slow awakening of common sense among our neighbors has shown them the inexpediency of the frequent blowing out of each other's brains to assert their honor, but the faith in "The Code" as an aristocratic, gentlemanly feature of social life, yet remains. Young men of the upper classes now compromise between the high-toned traditions of order and their desire to stay alive by the ridiculous, bloodless, swaggering encounters such as that to which the Wise family treat us now and then. But young fellows of the rank of this Garland, when enraged, follow the example of their social leaders and have not wit enough to play hero and coward at once, and so to save their lives. The poor girl whose coquetries provoked the duel has received her punishment. She would not hear a word of censure. With one man whom she professed to love, dead, and the other on trial for his life, what condemnation from without could hurt her more?

"But young women like her, and the mothers of such women, would do well to read carefully the story of this trial. Here was a girl betrothed to one man, corresponding and exchanging locks of hair and photographs with another whese moral character she herself declares she thought to be atrocious. But "letters and locks of hair go for nothing,' she says. In what other civilized country where wives and sisters are honored would "letters and locks of hair count for nothing" with an innocent maiden? Where else would a decent girl be left by her mother to make herself common and cheap by such gifts with any stranger with whom she chooses to flirt? Yet this hint is an index to the prevailing social custom in a large class of our young men and women, a class who are in intention and act innocent and respectable. The consequences are that the girl who is "given her fling" by her parents to enjoy herself while she is young, goes to her husband if not with smirched reputation, at least with calloused sensibilities and a heart more like the old wilted plant which has been exposed all day in the street for sale, than the dewy flower which he fancies it.

"Women, too, and especially young women, know nothing of the affections and passions of men which they provoke. They are children playing with fire. Now and then there is an outbreak like the present, or the murder of Jennie Cramer, or the disappearance of the pretty child who was suffered to visit a camp to flirt with the soldiers. How many thousands of of American mothers now are turning their silly, pretty girls loose, unwatched and unwarned, to ride, flirt and correspond with men of whom they know nothing? We hear much of the boldness of innocence in this country, but it is one of those virtues which are as disastrous as vice."

Wanted—An Issue.

The Democratic press has been advertising extensively for an issue to be joined by the two great parties in Pennsylvania. The canvass is said to be "pining and peaking" for lack of some living issue upon which Republicans and Democrats can lock horns and enthuse the people. The Democrats recognize the issue between the factions of the Republican party, but that issue is made upon matters in dispute which Democrats do not care to engage in. They like to see the quarrel go on. They are glad to find a divided house when erewhile there was an alarming "solidarity." But Democrats will not war upon bosses, and machines, and ideal schemes for the distribution of patronage. Democrats are not given to much grief over the tyranny of bosses, because but for boss rule the Democratic party would have died the death twenty years ago.

We really do not know how an issue is to be furnished to meet the demand of the Democratic press. The Democrats themselves say that there is no real disagreement between their party and the Republican party as to State policy. The Republicans hold to deriving income from taxes on corporations and business. The Democrats say they are of the same mind. And at last the Democrats are reconciled to the extinction of the State debt, a work begun and carried on by the Republicans since 1861. Prior to that time, with few and brief interregnums, the Democrats had held the State government for their own special use, benefit, behoof and glory. They drove the taxwagon over every acre of land in the State, squeezed every citizen so long as he had a cent to pay, and spent the money. How did they spend it? Most of the leaders became enormously wealthy, though we should not like to say that all of them were thieves. They were all glad to spend public money. Contractors and canal bosses made all the money in those halcyon days. Most of those who waxed fat in that time, if alive, are reformers of the blue bellied stripe. They go about with noses elevated and scent corruption on every breeze. That was a time for whose return all Democrats of the true Jeffersonian stripe most earnestly long. Yet every dollar collected from the people was spent, and at the end of the long and glorious reign of Democratic mud-bosses the people found bills payable aggregating nearly forty millions.

Now we think the Democrats can have an issue out of this bit of history if they really peak and pine for an issue. The people can be invited to study the history of Democratic rule from 1827 to 1860, and having mastered it, can turn their attention to the history of Republican rule from 1861 to 1882. If, after mastering the problems of Democratic economy which so thickly bestrew the former period, they concluded to try another thirty years of Democratic rule, let that be the issue. Probably the parties will divide about as they are divided now, in which case the issue will be upon the question: "Shall we have a term of debt contracting and heavy taxation, or shall we continue the business of debt paying and tax reduction?" We offer this in answer to the advertisements for "an issue" now so frequent in Democratic papers. We think it is a fair offer. If it be rejected, we do not see how there is to be an issue at all. For the Democrats have all come over to the Republicans as regards State policy. They resisted long, but at last surrender. They will have to go back for an issue.

JUST NOW the Democratic press all over the State is encouraging, flattering and coaxing the independents to stand firm, and not to dicker, reconcile or coalesce with the Republicans. They are advised to maintain their manhood, stand up for principle, rebuke bossism, and never to surrender; no never. If the Independents would reflect that all this obsequious attention on the part of the Democrats, this fawning flattery, is newly put on, in order that the Democrats may use the Independents—directly or indirectly—in the election of Pattison, they perhaps would recognize that true manhood would not allow them to be made tools of for Democratic uses. True manhood naturally suspects flattery of covert enemies, the Independent Republicans who succumb to Democratic flattery will be ashamed of the uses the Democrats will have made of them before the next Governor is inaugurated.

CAPE MAY has a young woman who hasn't missed a dance this season.

Still Waters not Always Deep.

The Revolution which drove Louis Phillippe from the throne of France was brought to a head in less than five hours, and had the most unexpected consequences. The soldiers had fired on the people and eighteen men were killed. These were laid on carts with their wounds exposed, and driven through the streets. No speeches were made, no meetings held, but Paris was roused to a pitch of frenzy and the King fled in disgrace to escape death. The Democratic press has openly and covertly sneered at General Beaver's crutches and thus brought upon it the contempt of those loyal men who cannot readily forget how those crutches were earned. Could the Republicans of Pennsylvania imitate the Parisians, and parade through the streets of the large cities and along the highway of this great State the wounded and maimed of the late war, there is that responsive sense of justice in human nature which would prevent any loyal man voting for Pattison, and ensure that no person with the slightest taint of disloyalty should continue to hold office in Pennsylvania. The Democrats are unmistakably nervous about the effect of the General's wooden leg, and so take every opportunity of disparaging the service in which it was won. But not only Beaver's leg but his tongue also gives the Democracy a pang, and we hear a very great deal about the pure gold of silence, and some have dug up the antiquated maxim, "that a still tongne makes a wise head." Now, Pattison may keep just as still as he pleases.

Silence is certainly for him the better part of wisdom, he might say awkward things, and be asked very awkward questions, but judging from the effect that that the few speeches, and the social conversation of General Beaver has had wherever he has appeared, we are decidedly of the opinion that he would be very foolish to be silent at the bidding of a few Democratic owls who find it best for their health to hoot at night-time, and who delude themselves into the belief that looking wise is being wise. There is nothing so much admired in the world as ready wit and fluent speech, and persons not possessing these have always striven to bring discredit upon their possessors. We are certainly not responsible if the Democracy has nothing good to say for itself. Perhaps it has both wit and fluency, but may be it is like Robespierre choked with blood and so cannot speak plainly. Again the responsibility is not ours. We are very thankful, however, that Providence has given these good gifts to our candidate and that he knows how to use them to such good purpose, and if 'the still tongue makes a a wise head' business suits his opponents, they are quite welcome to give it a fair trial. With regard to Stewart's proposal, we were forcibly reminded of the story of the man who was selling oranges, and crying his fruit in stentorian tones while a a little chap with a basket full of oranges, said, "me too" between every pause, thus diverting a few pennies from those who admired the humor of the thing. But we do not believe in the "me too" business.

IT is not often that the United States is left behind in the race, whether the same be for commercial supremacy, inventive fertility or any other kind of notoriety, consequently but little surprise will be manifested when it is announced that a sort of Indian Arabi Pasha has been developed in the wild west. Chief Red Cloud is the individual in question, and he gravely gives the government sixty days to remove an agent offensive to him, or he will put said agent off the reservation by force. The dispatch pleasantly remarks that Red Cloud is cool but determined, so that the United States is brought face to face with the inevitable query, "What are you going to do about it?" There must be some magnetic sympathy between the Arab and the Indian.

Bubbles for Babies.

Any person of ordinary intelligence, perusing the political leaders in the Democratic and half-caste press of this State, would be irresistably led to the conclusion that the editors had said to each other, in effect: "The people are so ill versed in political matters, and so little likely to inquire into the truth of what we say or write, that we will run the whole gamut of humbug and falsehood, and vie with each other in testing to what extent public credulity may be imposed on. We will marshall hosts of figures to our aid, and when they are seasoned with select quotations from Washington and Jefferson, they will be gulped with hungry avidity by the thoughtless multitude." This certainly must be true of those who are continually holding Pattison up as a model of ingenious statesmanship and economy. Pattison assumed the duties of his present office of Controller of Philadelphia, January 1st, 1878, and on June 11th, 1879, the law limiting appropriations went into effect. Prior to that time the element in councils led by Cavan and Wagner curtailed the appropriations. It will thus be plainly seen that Pattison is entitled to no credit for the economy prevailing in the city government, as he has had nothing whatever to do with existing circumstances, and all this effort to prove that he has saved the city large sums of money is just so much time and paper wasted.

IT is a very good as well as a very significant sign that Representative Holman, of Indiana, has found it necessary to defend himself before his constituents against charges of habitual indulgence in strong drink. Not that the charges ought to have been made since in this case they seem to have been maliciously untrue, but that Mr. Holman's denial evidences a healthy state of public sentiment which is destined soon to banish drunkards from the public service. A dozen years ago it would not have been considered much to the discredit of a representative in congress that he was a slave to his appetite for intoxicants. But there has been an advance all along the line until it has now come to pass that the enemies of a public man find one of the strongest arguments they can use against him to be the charge that he is addicted to drink. We note with much satisfaction the growing rightness of the people on this subject and confidently look for the day when the truth will find universal acceptance that no man who is in the habit of heating his brain and destroying his brain with alchoholic poison will be deemed fit to make laws either for the commonwealth or the nation.

AMONG the surprising changes of politics is that of Mr. Caven, who supports the regular Republican ticket this year. He clearly sees that the reform principles for which he contended are not represented in the Independent movement, nor yet in the candidacy of Mr. Pattison. Mr. Caven is a clear-headed man, and perceives that the regular Republican convention represented the real majority of the Republican party. He also is aware of the fact that the Independent ticket is far weaker than that of Wolfe last year. Hence he proposes, both from principle and policy, to stand up for the regular ticket. His attitude will be that of thousands, who have quietly looked into matters and see how little there is in the claims of the Independents.

AFTER over nine years of faithful service as general manager of the Pennsylvania railroad lines between New York and Pittsburg, Mr. Frank Thomson will be advanced to the position now occupied by Mr. A. J. Cassatt, the first vice president, on his retirement in a few weeks. Mr. Thomson, while not taking the title as "first vice president," will succeed to the important duties so long and successfully administered by Mr. Cassatt.

THE Washington monument, when completed, will cost over $3,000,000.

CAMPAIGN SONG.

TUNE—CASTLES IN THE AIR.

Song of the good old Keystone State
Let heart and hand unite,
And shoulder unto shoulder stand
To battle for the right:

CHO.—We'll fling our banner to the breeze.
And proudly let it float,
For Beaver and Republicans
Like honest men we'll vote!

There's music in the names, "my boys,"
A manly honest ring,
They never played the traiter knave
Nor did a dastard thing,
Our watchword truth and justice to
The world we will proclaim,
And never lend a helping hand
To forge a chain of shame.
CHORUS—

Our fathers have not bled for naught,
Our sons and brothers brave;
Their sacred voices call to us,
From battle-field and grave,
Finish the work that we begun
For country, home and God,
And never bend your backs to feel
The Democratic rod.
CHORUS—

We've held the nation's banner high,
Unbent by storm or ill,
In victory it yet shall fly,
And we will guard it still;
The stripes for foes, for friends the stars,
The breeze its folds shall fill,
And by our leader's battle scars,
We'll vote the ticket still.
CHORUS—

THE LADY SHOPPER.

A woman enters a drygoods store,
Steps to a clerk who stands near the door,
Asks him to show her the latest style,
And she pulls over the goods meanwhile.
She says, "I want a dress for my niece,
Will you please show me that under piece?
Oh! I didn't see 'twas a polka spot,
That is too near like the one she's got,
That piece with the stripes would just suits me
I'ts just as pretty as it can be;
But she wants a better covered ground,
With a sort of a vine all running 'round,
She don't want too dark, nor yet too light,
Or a striped piece, nor yet very bright:
I think she'd like what you showed me last,
But do you think the colors are fast?
Cut off a bit before I decide,
I'll take the piece home and have it tried.
I had a dress like that last fall,
And the colors did not wash at all,
I like those patterns there on the end,
I'll take a few samples for a friend,
Now one of this, if you'll be so kind.
And a bit of that if you'd not mind.
They're the nicest style I've seen this year,
I most always do my trading here,
I forgot the piece—'Twas pretty dear.
It's a sort of a dark alapaca stuff,
I want to match it, I've not enough.
Do you thing you have it in the store?
My dress is spoiled if I can't get more.
Will you put these samples in a bill?
I'll know where I got them if you will.
I'll take them home if she thinks they'll do,
You'll see me back in a day or two."

Our Story Teller.

Miss Rivington.

"It is for such women, I would possess neither chivalry nor mercy. A woman who counts the effects of every intonation, every smile, every glance—who trades upon her beauty and man's weakness as the passing amusement of an hour—whose self-power is her sole duty."

It was harsh criticism, and Horace Winter's voice unconsiously hardened as he uttered it. It was to his fiancee that he spoke. Perhaps to another he would have been more guarded; but there was no softening in his handsome face, as he looked down from his splendid beight to the slight, girlish figure, who laid one little hand pleadingly on his arm.

"You are unjust to Maude, Horace," she said, "It is not like your usual judgment of woman. Did I not know you better I should say you almost feared the power you so ruthlessly condemn."

"No, darling, I despise Maude Rivington as a woman unworthy her womanhood—a woman who seems to me, in the strange, incongruous friendship between you, like some gorgeous poison-plant beside a pure white rose in its half blossomed loveliness. I wish—"

But Horace Winter's wish was never uttered. At that instant the portierre dividing the library from the music-room was brushed aside. In the former apartment, where the two had stood together, the gathering twilight had already half hidden the room in shadow, but the semi-darkness failed to hide the marvelous and transcendent beauty of the third comer upon the scene. How long had she stood there? How much had she heard?"

Instantly Miss Mathers, her hostess—divined—nothing. It would have been impossible otherwise, she reasoned, for her to come forward with that radiant smile, and outstretching her hands to the blaze, from the logs in the fireplace, utter some commonplace about the drea ry November promise of an esrly winter.

But the man thought—nay, knew differently. The woman had spoken, I have said a commonplace; that is, so the words written would seem. In reality, nothing that fell from the rich, crimson smiling lips ever appeared so. Something of her own rare, piquant charm invested all she said or did; but in this moment, even while the low sweet-musical voice broke the silence, the violet eyes upraised themselves in an instant into her censor's face, not with a challenge, but pathetic with a mute appeal—such a look, perhaps, as overspread Cesar's face when he looked up and knew that his friend had slain him.

In all his life no man had ever accused Horace Winters of being a coward, but in this moment he felt himself such. Had he really been ungenerous, and toward a woman? Could he have been mistaken in the estimate he had formed, when he had deemed Miss Rivington a beautiful, soulless statue, using her arts but in the destruction of men?

An instant he let the doubt enter like a sword thrust into his soul, then he sternly barred it out. Had he forgotten that she was an actress, that for the moment he was ready to let her acting deceive him like the rest?

"You are cold, dear? You have been out," questioned her friend, glancing at the tiny fur-bordered cap, resting on her small, exquisitely poised head.

"Yes, I have been walking. I went to my room to write some letters, but the paper looked so cold and unresponsive that I felt quite sure that nothing I could put upon it would make it less so. I believe, too,"—this with a rippling laugh—"that I grew weary of myself and my own thoughts, and thought to get away from both. I feared, however, my success could scarcely be construed into a triumph."

"It is too bad you are tired. To-night, you know, is the Howard's ball—the first of the season. It will not do for its belle to be weary."

An instant's shadow crossed the lovely face, then she stretched out her hand and let it barely touch Helen Mather's fair young cheek ere it fell again.

"You are too good to me, dear; but I promise my weariness will not be apparent at the ball. Who could imagine Maudie Rivington weary when music and dancing were on the tapis? Besides, machere, I am quite recovered already. I have had a tonic administered since I left my room, and one that can hardly fail to take effect."

Before Helen could ask the nature of the stimulant the butler announced dinner, and the conversation dropped.

* * * * * *

"Ask Maude to dance, Horace. She is my guest, dear. It is the merest courtesy. Do it for my sake."

These were the hurried words Miss Mathers found a moment to whisper in her lover's ears, a half hour after they had entered Mrs. Howard's brilliantly illuminated drawing-rooms.

The man glanced across them now to a distant corner, where stood the woman surrounded by a little crowd of men. Conscious always of Maude Riverton's beauty, to-night she dazzled him. She was dressed all in white, unrelieved by any spot of color, save a bright crimson stain upon one cheek, and the rich ruby of her lips. The violet eyes darkened almost to blackness; but, though she had laughed at her weariness as a jest, something still suggested it in the shadows about the sweeping lashes and the drooping corners of the exquisite mouth.

With a shrug of his handsome shoulders, Horace crossed to her side. The little group made way for him to make one of themselves.

"May I claim one waltz, Miss Rivington, or is your card already full?"

She glanced up, hesitated an instant, then handed him her card. Every space was filled save one—a waltz, half way down the programme. How happened that one coveted dance to be undisposed of?

"I am fortunate," he said, with a ring of quiet and unconscious sarcasm in his voice; and hastily scribbling his name, he handed back the now completed card, bowed and retired.

But somehow the words jarred on his ear. Now and then he knew that Helen Mathers did not quite fill his heart as another might have filled it. It was the case of a man adored rather than a man adoring.

He had known her for many years. He knew her to be pure and sweet and womanly. The betrayal of her heart's secret, unconsciously to herself, caused his generosity to respond and ask her to be his wife.

The question had well-nigh stunned her. She had sometimes felt she was in some dream whose awakening must soon follow. In her sight her lover was unlike all other men, and stood a prince among them. His strength, his manhood, were in her eyes infinite—only equaled by his intense and unselfish tenderness.

The evening was half at an end, when, from its hidden recess, the band clashed forth its harmonious summons to the waltz against which the name was inscribed upon Miss Rivington's card. Before its introduction was finished he was prompt to claim his promise.

She spoke no word as she arose and permitted him to encircle the slender waist with his arm. Together they floated round the room. She danced most exquisitely. He scarcely felt her weight as she leaned upon him.

He looked down upon the perfect beauty of her face, and recognized its wonderful, potent charm. A subtle perfume of violets was wafted to his senses; his heart beat heavily.

Merciful heaven! had he, too, gone mad, that this woman could move him thus?

And yet neither had broken the silence, but, with the waltz half ended, she spoke:

"It is warm here," she said. "Will you take me into the hall?"

Instantly he complied. She knew the house well, and led the way into an ante-room, for the moment deserted. Then she turned and faced him.

"I want to ask you," she said, "why you will not be my friend?"

He knew that his suspicion of the afternoon had been correct—that she had heard all that he had said of her. Once again the sense of almost cowardice smote him. Then he grew hard.

"You have many victims," he answered. "Do you sigh still for another on your list?"

"You forget that Helen is my friend, and I am hers," she said, reproachfully.

The long lashes swept her cheeks, but he fancied that for an instant ere they had fallen, he detected the glimmer of unshed tears. The sight stirred his inmost pulses. He caught her bare white arm in his grasp.

"Do not tempt me," he murmured, in low, intense tones. "If I loved you, I would kill you did your glance but rest on others as I have seen it rest."

A moment before he would have thought himself incapable, not only of such a speech, but the motive to induce it; but something within him, which through all the thirty years of his existance had lain dormant, suddenly awakened into life.

The possibility of joy akin to ecstasy revealed itself as twin to the possibility of pain so great that beside it all other suffering dwindled into insignificance—nay more, into nothingness.

He had seen this woman daily for three weeks, during which time she had been the guest of his betrothed. He had seen her wonderful power and its ruthless exercise.

Could it be possible that all this time he, too, had been under its sway, or was it the momentary spell of the serpent which allured and held him?

"If we had known each other earlier," she murmured, "this might have been different. Now—now, it is only the ought-have been."

"What do you mean?" he said, hoarsely, carried away by an impulse stronger than his strength. "Can it be you might have cared for me? Why, then, are all men your lawful game."

"You have been cold and cruel," she replied.

"How else could I hide my wounds?"

"Answer—you love me? Maude! my love! my queen! answer me."

He no longer sought the truth from himself for her—he loved for the first and only time in his life. No false idea of honor swayed him. With his heart another's it would be dishonorable, indeed, to marry any woman, least of all one who trusted him as full as the girl who even at this moment dreamed her sweet dreams for the future. To destroy them was dishonor—yes, but to go on deceiving her, now that he knew the truth, greater dishonor still.

"You love me? Answer me!" he said.

He saw the graceful figure tremble, as with a sudden chill. The bright spot on her cheek had faded; even her lips had paled.

Slowly, slowly the veiled lids unclosed, and the violet eyes were revealed to him. In them he read her answer.

For one moment he clasped her in his embrace—it seemed to him his very soul opened to receive her—a moment only, then she drew herself away.

"You have forgotten—Helen!" she said; and for the first time her voice had lost its sweetness in its strained and harsh intensity.

"I have forgotten nothing," he replied. "Helen shall know all ere she sleeps to-night. She is too generous not to forgive."

"No, no; she must not know to-night!" she pleaded. "Wait until the morrow—wait until I have seen you once again. You promise me?"

"What could you ask I would not promise?"

"Take me to the carriage. Tell Helen I was suddenly taken ill, and would not call her, knowing she would insist on accompanying me. Tell her I am tired."

The shadows deepened about the beautiful eyes, the sweet mouth quivered. He stooped and kissed it with reverent tenderness.

Ten minutes later she was being driven rapidly homeward, both windows of the carriage thrown open, and the cool night air blowing freely in upon her bare neck and arms, her head thrown back among the cushions, and the hot tears raining unheeded down the lovely cheeks.

The next morning, ere Horace Winters had risen, a servant brought him a letter, which was marked "immediate."

He opened it hastily, and turned to the signature. It was, as he had surmised, from Maud Rivington, and ran thus:

"I write to say good-by, I am not strong enough to put it into spoken words. I have done you but one wrong—the wrong of loving you. I heard your condemnation of me to Helen. I longed to show you that however it might be with others, it was not so at least with you. I—I meant to tell you, when I asked you to take me from the ball room, I was engaged to be married to a man much older than myself, but who was very good and kind. Alas! you know how differently the interview ended for us both. There is but one way left us, dear—to part, and never look each upon the other's face again. Never let Helen supect the truth. It would break her heart. I think at this moment I can guess something of what the pain of a breaking heart might be. Yet, I too, go to redeem my plighted word. I have made to Helen some excuse for the man I am to marry, asking that the ceremony be immediate. I must shield myself behind another's strength. I begun this letter two hour's since; I had tossed it down, determined to give up all rather than my new and exquisite joy, when Helen came to my room. Why was it that she talked of you? She showed me her heart, and you filled it. Remember this always when you are tempted to think of me. My love! my love! Good-bye! God bless you!"

A fortnight later the papers announced Miss Rivington's marriage to the man who held her troth. Six months after Horace Winters received his bride.

The world called him a model husband; his wife feels no void in her happy, uneventful life; but within two hearts there is an altar and a sacrificial fire which burneth day and night.

How Hazing was Stopped.

Says Peck's Milwaukee Sun: Many have wondered why there has not been any hazing at Harvard for the past three months. In all that time there has not been a case of hazing reported, and some have come to the conclusion that the hazers have met with a change of heart, but a change of clothes is what ails them. We are informed that the hazing is effectually broken up. Just after Sullivan whipped Ryan he was called to Harvard, and a plan of breaking up hazing was unfolded to him by the faculty and he fell into it readily. He was to attire himself as a Quaker young man, and apply for admission as a freshman and let nature take its course. On the first day of April Mr. Sullivan appeared at the college under the name of Abija Watson, and was assigned to a room and placed on the roll of freshmen. His appearance was commented on, and as he passed through the grounds with his peculiar garb the young men shouted, "Shoot that hat!" "Get on to his nibs!" and other college literature. It was all Mr. Sullivan could do to restrain himself from whipping a couple dozen of the boys then and there, but he decided to wait until the proper time, when he would be able to get enough for a mess.

That evening he was approached by a young man who pretended to be his friend, and invited to accompany him to a room where a few boys were going to open a few bottles of wine. Abija said verily he didn't go much on the sinful beverage, but to oblige his friend he went with him to a large room where seventy smart young fellows were congregated with all the appliances for hazing. Sullivan says there were seventy, but the faculty only found sixty-five smart Alecks when the door was opened, but Sullivan thinks a few may have jumped out of the window and took to the woods. It seems that when they got the "Quaker" into the room they locked the door, and the ringleader told the peaceful man to strip off his coat, vest and shirt. He objected, but finally took them off.

Some of the fellows who have since got out of the hospital say they noticed when he removed his shirt he was put up like a hired man, and they thought it queer that a Quaker should have an arm as big as a canvassed ham. They then told him to "prepare to meet his God," and got out the iron to brand him on the back. He told them that he knew he was in their power, and was willing to submit to anything that was right, but he asked as a favor not to bear on too hard, as he was of a nervous temperament and might faint. Then they decided not to brand him until later, but would throw him up in a blanket first and tipped Sullivan over in it, and about twenty of the smartest hazers took hold of the sides and tossed him up.

When he came down he knocked four fellows senseless with his fists, kicked four more across the room, and then got on his feet and began to knock them right and left. He had knocked down about twenty and had stopped to spit on his hands, when the rest of the hazers huddled in a corner and proposed to put an end to the slaughter. One said: "O, good Mr. Quaker, please let us alone, we belong to respectable families, and won't do so any more." Sullivan looked at them and said: "It is hazing yez want. Well, yez can have plenty," and he went at them, and in about fifteen minutes he corded up the whole gang, and hazing was broken up in Harvard College. As he threw his coat and shirt across his arm and walked out of the room, and met the faculty in the hall, he said: "Throw water in their faces, and they will all regain consciousness in from ten minutes to half and hour," and he shook hands with the faculty, received his $500 and left for New York with his trainer, Billy Madden, who was sitting on the fence outside waiting for him.

"Fot kind of a time did yez have wid de b'ye?" asked Mr. Madden, as he helped Mr. Sullivan on with his shirt, and changed the Quaker hat for another.

"Verily, friend William," said Quaker Sullivan, as he counted the roll of bills to see that the faculty did not shove any counterfeits on him, "it was the evint of the season. It is good exercise." And they started for Cornell University, at Ithaca.

He Knew the Hair.

A few days since a party of gentlemen were together. One man, a joker, stepped up to a member of the party, and holding a long hair before his eyes, said:

"See here old fellow this looks suspicious. Tell me, where did this long hair come from?"

"Why, that's from my wife's head!"

"Are you sure of it?"

"Sure of it? Of course I am. You don't suppose you would find any other woman's hair about me, do you?"

"No, probably not; but I am sorry you are so sure it is your wife's hair, for I just picked it off the coat of this gentleman," pointing to a friend near by.

My borders shall have "the fat of the land," she said as she receipted for a tub of oleomargarine.

Martin Van Buren.

Probably no character in our history is so hard to analyze as that of Martin Van Buren. The secret of his power seems to have died with him. He was not renowned as an orator, and yet must have possessed great power as an advocate. He is not usually credited with having devised any great public measures, yet, during the most important epoch of his party's history, every measure to which it owed success not only required his approval, but showed his shaping or modifying touch. He is not eminent in debate, but was always a leader of his party. He is said to have been personally calm, self-poised and unconfiding. He heard every one's opinion, but took no one's advice. He was accounted shrewd and cunning, but never was accused of personal treachery. He was cautious to the verge of timidity, and, at the same time confident to the verge of rashness. He never exulted over victory nor whimpered at defeat. He had a few personal friends, but an amazing popular following. In theory he was the broadest of Democrats, in practice the most exclusive of aristocrats. None of his associates seem to have regarded him with affection, few of his opponents looked upon him with animosity. Perhaps no political life in our history shows so few mistakes. In no single instance did he fail to make the best of the occasion, viewing it from his own standpoint; unless it were the last and greatest of his life—the opportunity to lead the movement that eventually transformed the nation. He seems to have had all men's regard, but to have given none his trust. By his opponents he was called cunning; by his followers sagacious. More justly than any other politician he may be said to have achieved his own success. Living he was the envy of all who would succeed; dead he has been the model of unnumbered failures. Few statesman would covet his fame; fewer still do not envy his success. He is the Sphinx of our history—the hidden hand of many great events—a man in whom the elements were so deftly mixed that no friend knew his heart and no enemy ever came within his guard.

A Glimpse of the Franklins.

I was greatly struck with the contrast between Sir John Franklin and his wife. Sir John had already acquired fame as an Arctic explorer, and on this account I, a youth of eighteen, regarded him with much greater interest than I should have done had he been merely the Lieutenant-Governor of Tasmania. He was a tall, portly, florid-complexioned man with a head slightly bald, of very commanding presence, and with a cheerful, benevolent expression of countenance.

Lady Franklin looked like a fairy by his side. She was a slight, delicate-looking woman, with gentle, interesting features, and a soft low voice. Rather below the ordinary female stature, she seemed still less standing by the side of her stalwart husband. They remained about an hour, and then left the ship, a salute being fired on their departure. I had, however, an opportunity of becoming better acquainted with them than I could possibly have become during their brief visit to the ship; for before he left the vessel, Sir John invited the naval surgeon, the captain and myself to dine at his residence, "the Penns," the next day.

Sir John seemed never to be happier than when speaking of his former voyages; and he encouraged me to converse freely with him as we strolled over the grounds together or rode about the country. He had a complete and most perfect and elaborate set of charts of the Arctic regions, so far as they had then been explored, upon which his own explorations, and those of Captains Perry and Ross, and other Arctic explorers, were distinctly marked out; and it was his greatest pleasure of an evening to display these charts and point out the spots he had visited; also tracing the courses he would endeavor to pursue, if it should ever be his "good fortune," as he expressed himself, again to be employed in what was the great hobby of his life. There was not a point he had discovered, nor a spot that he had visited, respecting which he had not some anecdote to tell or some narrow escape to relate.

The Age of Animals.

Camels live from forty to fifty years; horses average from twenty-five to thirty; oxen, about twenty; sheep, eight or nine; and dogs, twelve to fourteen. Concerning the ages attained by non-domesticated animals only few insolated facts are known. The East Indians believe that the life period of the elephant is about 300 years, instances being recorded of these animals having lived 130 years is confinement after capture at an unknown age. Whales are estimated to reach the age of 400 years. Some reptiles are very long-lived, an instance being furnished by a tortoise which was confined in 1633 and exhibited until 1753, when he perished by an accident. Birds sometimes reach a great age, the eagle and the swan having been known to live one hundred years. The longevity of fishes is often remarkable. The carp has been known to live 200 years; common river trout, fifty years; and the pike, ninety years, while Gesner—a Swiss naturalist—relates that a pike caught in 1467 bore a ring recording the capture of the same fish 267 years before. Insects are very short-lived, usually completing the term of their existence in a few weeks or months. Some even perish within a few hours after emerging from a grub state, and die upon the very day of entering upon their new life. As a general rule, not to be applied too closely, larger types of animals live longer than smaller.

Wasted Politeness.

A man came into the office on Thursday with a black eye, a strip of court-plaster across his cheek, one arm in a sling, and, as he leaned on a crutch and wiped the perspiration away from around a lump on his forehead with a red cotton handkerchief, he asked if the editor was in. Being answered in the affirmative, he said:

"Well, I want to stop my paper," and he sat down on the edge of a chair as though it might hurt. "Scratch my name right off. You are responsible for my condition."

"Can it be possible?" we inquired.

"Yes," said he: "I'm a farmer and keep cows. I recently read an article in your paper about a dairyman's convention, where one of the mottoes over the door was: "Treat your cows as you would a lady;" and the article said it was contended by our best dairymen that a cow treated in a polite gentlemanly manner, as though she was a companion, would give twice as much milk. The plan seemed feasible to me. I had been a hard man with my stock and thought maybe that was one reason my cows always dried up when butter was forty cents a pound, and gave plenty of milk when butter was only fifteen cents a pound. I decided to adopt your plan, and treat a cow as I would a lady. I had a cow that had never been very much mashed on me, and I decided to commence on her. The next morning after I read your devilish paper I put on my Sunday suit and a white plug hat I bought the year Greeley run for president, and went to the barn to milk. I noticed the old cow looked frightened, but taking off my hat and bowing politely I said: "Madam, excuse the seeming impropriety of the request, but will you do me the favor to hoist?" At the same time I tapped her gently on the flank with my plug hat. Putting the tin pail under her I sat down on the milking stook."

"Did she hoist?" said we, rather anxious to know how the advice of President Smith, of Sheboygan, the great dairyman, worked.

"Did she hoist? Well, look at me and see if you think she hoisted. The cow raised and kicked me with all her four feet, switched me with her tail and hooked me with both horns at once, and, when I got up out of the bedding in the stall and dug my hat out of the manger and the milking stool from under me and began to maul that cow I forgot all about the treatment of horned cattle. Why, she fairly galloped over me, and I never want to read your paper again."

We tried to explain to him that the advice did not apply to brindle cows at all, but he hobbled out, the maddest man that ever asked a cow to hoist.

Georgia again Ahead.

Gilgal submits this truth addition to the snake literature of the State. Mr. Ezekiel Barr resides about twelve miles northeast of the post-office. His house is about a quarter of a mile from what is known as Rattlesnake brake, a cane brake surrounding a large number of lagoons in a bottom through which Hog Crawl creek runs, the water of which is as black as ink, and does not appear to move at all. On Sunday last Mr. Barr was at home, when he heard his dog barking furiously in a woods just above the house. He took his gun and started out, not certain what he would see. He had not gone twenty steps when the dogs ran frantically out of the woods, and almost immediately he saw a monster snake emerge from an opposite side of the narrow strip and make toward the brake. It was useless to attempt to shoot, so Mr. Barr stopped short and took a good look at the retreating monster. His head was about the size of a five gallon keg and about twice as long. He was about forty feet long and moved with the rapidity of a railway passenger train. The color of the snake was brilliant to a marvelous degree. Along the back was a streak of green, which on the sides changed to yellow, and on the belly presented a beautiful crimson. As the snake moved away he looked like a flying rainbow, and as the day was cloudy the effect of the bright colors was heightened and made more suggestive. The snake did not move as an ordinary black snake, but his body moved up and down, not from one side to the other. As the snake ran he moved his head from one side to another, as if fearing pursuit, and uttered a fearful hissing sound that could have been heard for several hundred yards. His eyes, as he would look around behind him, shone like diamonds, and were black as jet. There was a fence along the edge of the swamp and as he approached it his form extended like that of a flying squirrel, and without the slightest stay of speed he made a direct shoot, his entire body left the ground, and he went over the fence and into the swamp like an arrow sent from a bow. A pursuit will be organized, and it has been determined that his snakeship must die and give up his brilliant skin.

"How do you feel with such a shocking coat on?" said a young dandy to old Roger. "I feel," said old Roger, looking at him steadily with one eye half closed, as if taking aim at his victim. "I feel, young man, as if I had a coat on which I had paid for—a luxury of feeling which I think you have never experienced."

When a man's feelings are so great that he cannot express them, had he better send them by freight?

PLAIN TRUTHS

The blood is the foundation of life, it circulates through every part of the body, and unless it is pure and rich, good health is impossible. If disease has entered the system the only sure and quick way to drive it out is to purify and enrich the blood.

These simple facts are well known, and the highest medical authorities agree that nothing but iron will restore the blood to its natural condition; and also that all the iron preparations hitherto made blacken the teeth, cause headache, and are otherwise injurious.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS will thoroughly and quickly assimilate with the blood, purifying and strengthening it, and thus drive disease from any part of the system, and it will not blacken the teeth, cause headache or constipation, and is positively not injurious.

Gents:—Upon the recommendation of a friend I tried BROWN'S IRON BITTERS as a tonic and restorative for my daughter, whom I was thoroughly convinced was wasting away with Consumption. Having lost three daughters by the terrible disease, under the care of eminent physicians, I was loth to believe that anything could arrest the progress of the disease, but, to my great surprise, before my daughter had taken one bottle of BROWN'S IRON BITTERS, she began to mend and now is quite restored to former health. A fifth daughter began to show signs of Consumption, and when the physician was consulted he quickly said "Tonics were required;" and when informed that the elder sister was taking BROWN'S IRON BITTERS, responded "that is a good tonic, take it."

Harmony Mills Strike.

COHOES, Aug. 23.—At the Harmony mills to-day 100 extra looms were started. The strife now has concentrated on the weavers. Every dollar of the contributions is appropriated to this class of operatives. The sixteen spinners who preferred charges of questionable transactions against the Relief Committee have qualified the most damaging accusations by substituting the words: "Some of our number have not received," &c., instead of "None of us has received one dollar's support during fifteen weeks of idleness." Treasurer Terrell states that his books are open to inspection by the operatives individually or in committee. He claims to have given a receipt for every dollar received, and exacted vouchers for every dollar dispursed. There is an abundance of workmen employed in departments where experience is not essential, who are eager to resume their positions, but this class cannot be put to work until the higher grade of operatives return. The Relief Committee admits that there is suffering, and that there have been instances of hunger. The strike is unprecedented in Cohoes. Several grocers have issued cards stating that cash will be demanded before delivery of goods. Three families have been evicted, thus far, this week.

The Virginian Duel Trial.

LUNENBURG, Va., August 23.—The trial of Duelist Garland still attracts the deepest interest. The only men who do not seem particularly concerned are the jurors. One of them, Bruce by name, has borrowed Garland's fiddle to play for the amusement of his fellow-jurymen after the adjournment of the court every day. After the court had been called to order to-day Charles F. Finch, of Mecklenburg county, opened for the defense. He began by saying that Mr. Taylor and Judge Hinton had been employed by the Addison family as private prosecutors. The speaker wanted to know, as this case might possibly go to the Supreme Court of Appeals, what right Judge Hinton had to come here to prosecute this prisoner for the gold of the Addison family—for blood-money. In this connection Mr. Finch said that Judge Hinton and Mr. Taylor had the right to put their legal talents up to the highest bidder for blood-money, but this was the first time in the history of Virginia that a member of the Court of Appeals of the State had ever been found trailing its white ermine for blood-money. His (Finch's) talents could not be bought for blood-money. Mr. Finch read Miss Hatchett's letter to Garland and commented upon it at length. He said the prisoner had acted only as he should have done. Lunenburg county retains only its honor—the war had stripped it of all else. The father of the prisoner was unable to employ counsel for his poor boy, but the wealthy Addison family could employ a Baltimore lawyer and a member of the Court of Appeals of Virginia to prosecute Garland for an act which did him honor. After reading and commenting on the Court's instructions Mr. Finch concluded his argument.

Fall River Strike.

FALL RIVER, Aug. 23.—The Wampanoag Mill strikers had a meeting to-day to consider the situation. Secretary Howard was present, and explained the action taken by the union last night. After a discussion the strikers decided to maintain their present position, and refused to return to work. Spencer Borden, treasurer of the Fall River Bleachery, resigned to-day, and was succeeded by his brother, Norman Borden of Lonsdale, R I.

Decides to Accept.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Geo. Kellogg has decided to accept the congressional nomination and has announced that he would, upon his return in October, make a convass, provided the harmony in the party is not in the meantime restored on some basis to permit his withdrawal.

Hanged in Effigy.

SPRING LAKE, Aug. 23.—There was a funny scene on the beach to-day. An effigy of Oscar Wilde swung from the top of the lofty pole which bears the flag of the bathing industry. Oscar, who was to lecture here to-night, was announced as intending to bathe in the surf at eleven this morning. This announcement brought an immense crowd to the beach. The people anticipated a great treat, for comparatively few of them had ever seen the much-advertised apostle of æstheticism and none of them had seen him in the surf. Eleven o'clock came and passed and the waiting throng showed signs of disappointment. Some blamed Oscar, others blamed his managers and some blamed themselves for having subjected themselves to the risk of being badly sold just for the sake of gratifying their curiosity.

As soon as it was definitely known that the æsthete had not arrived at Spring Lake at all the keepers of the bathing houses prepared a stuffed image of him. They parted its flowing hair in the middle, robed it in a second-best bathing suit with knee-breeches and fastened a huge sunflower on its bosom. A pair of corsets ornamented its chest and waist. It was by no means a handsome figure. Amid great applause from boys and others they attached this spurious Oscar to the rope and ran it up to the top of the flag-pole, where, with a Japanese parasol in its hand, it swung and hung and swayed back and forth in the breeze. They did not treat the effigy to the indignity of hanging it by the neck, but placed the suspending rope under the arm-pits.

Express Robbery.

TUCSON, A. T., Aug. 23.—A despatch from the Globe give the following details of the murder and robbery of Wells, Fargo & Co.'s messenger on Sunday last:

"Andy Hall, Wells, Fargo & Co.'s messenger, was killed on Sunday morning by stage robbers, who got away with $5,000 belonging to Fisk, Waldridge & Co. Only two robbers were seen. They had a breastwork alongside the road, and commenced firing as soon as the express came within range. Hall had eight bulletholes in his body, all in front, and, when found, he was a mile from the trail, his pistol being empty. He had followed the robbers ten miles alone, fighting them. Parties are on the trail of the murderers."

1 p. m.—The men Curtis B. Hawley, Lafayette Grime, and Cicero Grime, who committed the robbery and murder, have been apprehended, and will certainly pay the penalty of their act with their lives.

Lafayette Grime has made a full confession, recounting every particular of the crime. It is a question, in the present excited state of the citizens, whether or not they will be allowed a preliminary hearing. The $5,000 which was secured by the murderers has not yet been recovered. Hawley, the ringleader, is an old offender.

The War in Egypt.

ALEXANDRIA, Aug. 23.—The Austrian gunboat Nautilius, bound from Port Said to Alexandria, passed Aboukir on Monday. The commander, seeing a white flag flying in the Aboukir forts, supposed they were in possession of the British and sent a boat ashore with an officer and twelve men, who were made prisoners by the Egyptians.

Fires were observed last evening in the neighborhood of Aboukir and Kafr-ElDwar. It is believed that it is a part of the Egyptian forces burning villages, either during or preparatory to a retreat.

PORT SAID, Aug. 23.—The natives are now returning and resuming work. It is reported from Ismailia that a force of the enemy, numbering about 3,000, have taken up their position ten miles from there. The disembarkation of troops will be completed to-morrow.

ISMALIIA, Aug. 23.—Since the engagement at Shaluff the enemy left every position they held between Suez and Ismailia, and retreated in disorder toward Zagazig. The Indian cavalry will come on here.

LONDON, Aug. 23.—A despatch from Ismailia reports that the Egyptians have cut the fresh water canal near there, but states that the supply of water will suffice for some time.

Fishing Stopped.

KINGSTON, Ont., August 23.—The fishery inspector stopped the Americans from fishing in Canadian waters. A number of steam yachts and small boats have been operating in the vacinity of Wolfe and Simcoe islands. The inspector informed them they had no right there unless licensed. Some tourists declined at first to move, but did so on the threat that their boats would be seized.

Approving a Good Object.

DUBLIN, Aug. 22.—Arch Bishop Croke, of the diocese of Cashel; Bishop Dorrian, of Down and Conor, Bishop Duggan, of Clonfert and Bishop McCormick, of Achonry, have written in approval of the efforts to establish a fund for the benefit of evicted tenants. Arch Bishop Croke promises a subscription of £40.

Indian Territory Election.

CHICAGO, Aug 23.—Despatches from the Indian Territory says that the election of Overton for governor is a great triumph for the stalwart Indian element as against outside influences and the violation of treaties. He has been Governor for four years, and the nation made giant strides during that period. Overton opposes the railroads.

Children Burned.

BORDENTOWN, N. J., August 23.—The residence of W. L. Morion at Beuerly was destroyed yesterday by fire from an explosion of a lamp. Three children were seriously burned.

After De Lesseps.

LONDON, Aug. 25.—A dispatch to the Times from Ismailia states that Arabi Pasha's soldiers are doubtless suffering great hardships, as those captured by the British look worn and feeble.

General Sir Garnet Wolseley in his dispatch to the war office recounts an engagement at Magfur on Thursday in which he held his ground the whole day against 10,000 Egyptians. His force numbers about 2,000 men. Our casualties have been slight. Captain Hallain Parr was wounded through the leg and Lord Melgund received a wound through the hand.

PORT SAID, Aug. 25.—Damietta has been captured. A sanitary agent of the English government, a post official and two priests were found there. They had been loaded with chains for the last six weeks and were subjected to the most terrible cruelties.

ALEXANDRIA, Aug. 25.—It is rumored that Arabi Pasha accuses De Lesseps with having deceived him with false promises, so as to be able to sell the Suez canal to the English, and he has set a price on De Lesseps' head.

The enemy are pitching a number of tents in front of their positions, but this is believed to be a ruse to mask the withdrawal of troops. It is now known that the enemy are entrenching at Heliopolis, a few miles east of Cairo.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 25.—Said Pasha and Assym Pasha, Turkish delegates to the conference, advanced fresh demands relative to the military convention with England, to the effect that the Turks should land at Alexandria, and that a proclamation relative to Arabi Pasha, instead of declaring him a rebel, should summon him to submit to the khedive.

Crime in the South.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., August 25.—As the train containing two colored prisoners—Savage and James—reached Madison this morning it was met by about one hundred persons, twelve or fifteen of whom rushed into the train and riddled the prisoners with bullets. The agent of the railroad did not suspect any violence until a short time before the arrival of the train, when he attempted to telegraph, but found the wires cut each way. He then ran up the track and signaled the conductor not to stop, but one had boarded the train and had uncoupled the two rear cars. The prisoners had been convicted for the murder of Frank Patterson, in February, 1881, at Madison, in a room where the testimony was being taken in the contested election case of Bisbee vs. Finley. A new trial had been granted by the supreme court, and the prisoners were being conveyed from Tallahasse to Jasper to undergo that trial when murdered. There is great excitement in Madison over the outrage.

In the Metropolis.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—Half a dozen young men, all being more or less drunk, entered the beer saloon of Peter Stein, on Goerck street, this forenoon and demanded drinks. The saloon keeper recognizing them as lawless ruffians, refused to give them any. The leader of the gang promptly whipped out a revolver and shot him down. Their leader, still flourishing the pistol, sprang upon the front platform of a car, shoved his pistol in the face of the astonished driver and seizing the reins ordered him to stand back. The driver was taken completely by surprise and cowed into submission. Whipping up the horses the ruffian ran them at a dead gallop to the corner of Houston street, the while covering the passengers in the car with his revolver and threatening to shoot the first who stirred. At Houston street he sprang from the car and boarding a ferry boat that was just going out he quitted the city for Brooklyn.

Holding the Fort.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., August 25.—F. D. Moulton, the purchaser of the Canonchet estate, was repulsed from the property yesterday by Ex. Governor Sprague. To-day Trustee Chaffee with his lawyer went to put Moulton in possession and found the place occupied by men hired and armed by Sprague. After an interview with Mr. Sprague's boy, who said that an entrance would be resisted by rifles, Gattling guns and mitrailleuses, Trustee Chaffee decided to withdraw and give the state of Rhode Island a chance to enforce the law.

Yellow Fever.

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., August 23.—Fifty-three new cases of yellow fever were reported to-day, and two deaths, the latter Mexicans. From Matamoros eleven deaths are reported and several new cases. The mails are not yet running. Business is stagnant, and mechanics and laborers are suffering for want of employment. The weather is showery and sultry.

Sparring Prohibited.

PHILADELPHIA, August 25.—Chief of police has given orders to prohibit the proposed sparring exhibition for the benefit of "Tug" Wilson in the industrial art building on next Monday night.

Shoots Her Husband.

LELAND, Ill., August 27.—This evening Mrs. J. M. Stratton, wife of a successful lawyer here, shot her husband and then herself, both dying immediately. No cause is assigned for the deed. They had been married a short time and apparently lived happy together. A little while before the shooting neighbors heard loud words between them.

A Desperate Battle.

ALEXANDRIA, Aug. 26.—Information which has leaked out to-day shows that Arabi's forces repulsed General Wolseley at the Tel-el-Mahuta fresh water canal dam during the engagements of Thursday and Friday and compelled the British to retire at dusk on Friday. Arabi had erected this dam for the purpose of cutting off the fresh water supply of Ismailia, the present base of British operations. It was absolutely necessary for General Wolseley to dislodge Arabi from possession of this dam before proceeding toward Cairo and the British forces were advanced to the dam for that purpose. They secured the dam, but before they could destroy it were compelled to retire on Friday evening. The firing of Arabi's troops turns out to have been almost perfect. It is understood that the Egyptian riflemen devoted their energies as far as possible to picking off the British officers.

The fighting for several hours was so desperate that General Wolseley was compelled to assume on the field a personal command of the operations. Once matters were so very critical that he rode far forward and nearly lost his life. One report says that a shell passed over his head so near to him as to stun him for a moment. The war office reports state that this shell fell within a few feet of General Wolseley's aids. Private reports allege that this explosion killed the charger of General Wolseley and that he fell to the ground and was quite badly shocked. This latter report makes it appear that it was owing to the mishap to the general that the British had to retire. General Wolsely, when the retreat was successfully accomplished on Friday night, rode to Ismailia and at once put himself in communication with the war office.

Shooting Affray.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., August 26.—A fatal shooting affray occurred here to-day, in which Moses Lusby was shot through the breast and instantly killed, and his son Don Lusby, was shot through the body and cannot live. The shooting was done between these men on one side and Gen. Joseph A. Mabry, and his son, Joseph A. Mabry, Jr., on the other. Don Lusby is the man who murdered William C. Mabry, son of General Mabry, last Christmas eve. On his trial for murder the jury disagreed and Don Lusby was released on bail. This morning Don Lusby abused General Mabry on the street and threatened to kill him. Don was arrested by the chief marshal, but resisted arrest. His father attempted to rescue him. He was taken to the City Hall before the recorder where the chief marshall and a policeman attempted to disarm him. The Mabrys were present as witnesses and engaged in a scuffle, in which the Lusbys were shot. When killed Moses Lusby had one pistol in his hand and one in his pocket. Don Lusby also had two pistols. An examination at the coroner's inquest failed to develop who did the shooting. The Mabrys gave themselves up and gave bonds.

The British Rifle Team.

LIVERPOOL, Aug. 26.—The steamer Alaska, with the British rifle team on board, sailed from here to-day for New York.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—General E. L. Molineux, the president of the National Rifle association, has written a letter to Colonel D. E. Austin, commanding the Thirteenth regiment, declining the tender of the services of the regiment for escort and guard duty at the approaching international rifle contest. He assigns as the principal reason for declining the receipt of a letter from Sir Henry Halford, the captain of the British team, in which he particularly requests him, General Molineux, to assist them to proceed quietly to their quarters at Garden City immediately on their landing in this country, which will probably be on Sunday, September 3.

Murder.

PETERSBURG, Va., Aug. 27.—Grant White, a mail rider in Oregon county, on Friday, shot Benjamin Turner in the abdomen in the public road. Turner died last night from the effects of the wound. Both parties are colored and are mere boys. They had quarreled a week ago at a fair about a girl. White met Turner on Friday on the road with the girl and immediately drew a pistol and took vengeance on his successful rival.

Organization of a G. A. R. Post at Snow Shoe.

In accordance with special order from head quarters, department of Pa. G. A. R., Austin Curtin, of Post No. 261, in company with comrades from Nos. 95, 261 and 263, proceeded to Snow Shoe, Centre county, on Wednesday evening, August 23, 1882, and mustered in what will be hereafter known in department of Pa. G. A. R. as "Lucas" Post No. 278. The Post is called after four men by the name of Lucas who went to the army from Snow Shoe township, and lost their lives in various ways in defense of their country. Their near relative, Perry John Lucas, was also with Commodore Perry in his flag ship during the battle of Lake Erie. Quite a number of persons bearing the name of Lucas went into the army from Snow Shoe, some of whom have become members of No. 278.

Forty-three men were mustered in as charter members. The following were duly elected and installed at this meeting by Commander D. S. Keller of No. 95, who was detailed by the commander and mustering officer to install them: J. W. Bogert, Commander; John Yeager, S. V. C; James B. Newcomer, J. V. C; James A. Thompson, M. D., Surgeon; Edward Shannon, Chaplain; John Gunsaullus, Officer of the Day; Jesse G. Lucas, Officer of the Guard; J. Albert Chrissman, Qr. M'r Serg't; J. W. Howard, Ordnance Serg't.

The Adjutant, Quartermaster and Sergeant Major were not elected or approved in time for this muster.

The following named comrades ably assisted the commander and mustering officer: S. V. C., Alfred Smith, Post 261; J. V. C., Samuel Gault, Post 95; O. D., Daniel S. Keller, Post 95; Adjutant, W. C. VanValin, Post 263; Chaplain, A. J. St. Clair, Post 263; Officer of the Guard, S. S. Gilliman, Post 261; Quartermaster, A. C. Moore, Post 261; Sergeant, Major C. E. Griest, Post 263; Inside Sentinel, Charles Glenn, Post 95; F. B. Holt, of Post 261, as Outside Sentinel, as guards guides and so forth, John Spencer and James Lucas, of 95, and John Harnisb, of 261.

No 278 bids fair to be a large, efficient and active Post.

Commander Keller, of 95, will muster a Post at Centre Hall week after next, which, when mustered, will make six new Posts of the G. A. R. organized in Centre county since July 13, 1882, ranging in membership from 20 to 43, making with the old posts—90, 95 and 197—nine posts in this county. They are as follows: 90, Philipsburg; 95, Bellefonte; 197, Lemont; 261, Milesburg 262, Howard; 263, Unionville; 272, Pine Grove Mills; 278, Snow Shoe and —, Centre Hall.

Can any county of the same population in the State equal the above showing in G. A. R. matters.

—A Hollidaysburg man recently visited a retired spot near what was once a reservoir, and where there is a a small body of water. Above this water on the day in question, near the shore, and apparently anchored thereto, rested a board nine feet long, eighteen inches wide and over an inch thick. Suddenly, without perceptible cause, the board left its mooring and started for the opposite bank. As it traveled it gained in momentum and struck the bank with considerable force. The gentleman was puzzled and frightened, and could not account for it in any way until a large musk rat suddenly emerged from under the board, looked at it and disappeared again as suddenly as he had come. The board had evidently been resting over his home and the animal had just moved it out of the way. Truth is stranger than fiction, and it is the truth that money may be saved by buying of Sechler & Co., the grocers in the Bush House block. They deal in nothing but the best groceries, and their long experience and large trade enable them to benefit their customers in many ways impossible among other grocers.

—None of the Gubernatorial candidates reached Williams' Grove, Cumberland county, on Wednesday, but both Beaver and Stewart promised to be there yesterday (Thursday). Pattison said he wouldn't attend, probably because he does not enjoy the society of his rural brethren.

—The sunflower may or may not be one of the most beautiful flowers that bloom, but Harry Green continues to sell the finest cigars that are manufactured.

Five Out-of-Town Locals.

Mr. J. H. Murphy, a resident of Julian, is erecting a commodious new frame residence. He is well advanced in years, and it is pleasant to note this evidence of his prosperity in securing a comfortable home in which to spend his declining years.

The residence of T. A. Ardell, also of Julian, has lately been rendered more commodious and comfortable by the erection of a beautiful addition, which is ornamented with that crowning feature of modern architecture, a bay window. Mr. T. A. Ardell is a brother of our well-known citizen, John Ardell, Jr., which sufficiently accounts for his activity and enterprise.

Mr. E. M. Lucas, who for fourteen years has been a railroad repairer on the division of the B. E. Valley Railroad at Unionville, has severed his connection with this corporation, for the more peaceful pursuit of husbandry. We hope his agricultural operations will be successful.

A fine farm horse owned by Mr. George Steele, of Martha, almost lost its life in a curious manner on Thursday. Mr. Steele was plowing with it at the time, and the flies being rather troublesome caused the horse to turn its head around. In doing so, the animal's nose came in contact with the sharp point of a weed growing near by, the point entering its nose, causing the blood to flow freely. It was with great difficulty that the flow of blood was stopped in time to save the animal's life.

Mr. John Craig, one of the retired farmers of Julian, is now erecting an addition to his house. The new part includes that most necessary room to any house, a large and commodious kitchen, fitted up with modern conveniences.

—While your corn and potatoes are growing so nicely you can find opportunity to come to town to purchase some groceries of Harry Teats & Co.

Bellefonte Academy.

The schools in the Academy building will begin on Monday, Sept. 4th. Mrs. W. W. Robinson, who has been recruiting her health during the past year, will resume the charge of the Young Ladies' Department. Mrs. E. M. Roberts will continue her successful work in the Primary School. Mr. J. W. Miller, who is favorably known as a Christian worker among the boys and young men of Bellefonte, will assist in the male department. He ranked high as a student in Latin, Germam and the Sciences, and has proved himself a successful teacher. The school for writing, which is already organized, is under the direction of Mr. S. T. Stephenson, who comes to us highly recommended as a Christian gentleman, a man of sterling worth and an accomplished and successful instructor.

The Principal will take the charge of the Greek in addition to the English Grammar and Mathematical departments. Four young gentlemen or young lady boarders can be accommodated at the academy on reasonable terms.

Pupils are requested to be punctual in their attendance at the opening of the session, when the classes are formed that they may receive the full benefit of the course.

J. P. HUGHES.

—Bellefonte is not increasing in population, but the store of Sechler & Co. is steadily gaining in patronage.

—The Logan Hose Company will be much pleased to receive donations of cakes, sandwiches, &c., from the ladies of Bellefonte, for the picnic they propose to give next Friday. They will treat all the visiting firemen to a free dinner and the quantity needed will certainly be very large. We have no doubt the people of Bellefonte will respond liberally, and do all they can to aid the boys who risk their lives to save property when total destruction threatens it. Contributions may be sent to the hose house on Thursday afternoon or Friday morning.

—Jelly can be made thick and beautiful if sugar from Harry Teats & Co.'s grocery is used.

—An infant that was left at the Philadelphia and Erie station at Williamsport, a few days ago, and was afterward taken to the Home of the Friendless in that city, has since been claimed by a man and his wife who went from this place to the home of the wife's parents at Montoursville. They were afraid to take it with them all the way to Montoursville, because two persons sometimes constitute a company while three persons are enough to be denominated a crowd.

—"Eat all you want of wholesome food" is very good advice, and the question suggests itself: What is wholesome food? We reply: Eggs and milk with a variety of pies, custards and puddings compounded of groceries from Harry Teats & Co.'s store.

Philipsburg News Budget.

PHILIPSBURG, Aug. 22, '82.

Copious showers of rain last night and this forenoon. But it is scarcely worth the while of this scribe to speak of that unpeculiar fact, for the aqueous solution was no doubt pretty general throughout the State.

Jack Frost is said to have appeared at several points on this side of the hill during the last few nights. Blankets and heavy clothing are in demand.

The coal trade is or would be active, except for the scarcity of cars. The miners are quiet again, and business appears to move on as of old.

A large and commodious hotel is talked of among the enterprising moneyed men of this town. It is to be hoped that an enterprise of this character will be put in a tangible shape at as early a day as possible, for no where in the outside world is there such a need for a comfortable hotel as there is right here in Philipsburg.

The price of butter and eggs is on the descending scale here. It would seem that cows and hens have gone on a strike in the agricultural sections of the country. And thus when the general inferior quality of the butter produced in the valleys of this country and sold here is considered, to pay 32 cents a pound for any artiticle not in any way superior to oleomargerine is an excuse sufficient for any ordinary act of homicide.

John S. Gray, who was said to have fallen from his back porch the night of the 12th instant and broken his colar bone, is again on the streets. His arm, however, rests in a sling.

A reduction of three in the clerical force at Gray, Wolfe & Co's store was made last week.

The new building being erected by Strauss, Lehman & Co. will be ready for occupancy in about a month. When completed it will be one of the most commodious mercantile rooms to be found anywhere in country towns and cities.

The receipts for freight at this station are from $5,000 to $7,000 per month.

Hoover, Hughes & Co. are building an addition to their already very extensive planing mills in this town.

The average citizen of these parts would like to know the meaning of the 400 railroaders lately put to work along Beech Creek. Does it mean a railroad across the mountains into this coal basin in the interest of Vanderbilt and others?

DAN DE QUILLE.

—Some of the metropolitan newspapers tell us that there is a decadence in the religious sentiment of the day, but the fact that the religious summer resorts have enjoyed an unusually prosperous season, while those of a more worldly character have had only an ordinary season, seems to contradict the assertion. Sunday, August 20, witnessed the greatest throng of people at Ocean Grove that ever congregated there, while the number that attended the religious services was simply immense, 10,000 people gathering at the surf meeting as the sun was going down. There seems to be a tendency among the secular newspapers of New York to misrepresent the true state of affairs, and this tendency is perhaps universal; but all the words that can be uttered or written will fail to make the people of Centre county believe that Sechler's store is not the best place in this vicinity to purchase groceries. So many people have already tested this fact for themselves that it cannot be contradicted. "Seeing is believing," and those who visit Sechler's store see with their eyes, hear with their ears, feel with their fingers and are convinced.

—The new postal order bill promises to be a measure of real convenience to the public. Orders for a sum less than five dollars will cost three cents, and the service is extended so as to raise the limit of orders from fifty to one hundred dollars. Further, persons will not be required to fill out a blank, as at present, for an order, but will receive an order payable to the bearer at the money order designated by the applicant. The new notes are to be handsomely engraved.

—Pure, unadulterated groceries at the fine new store of Harry Teats & Co., opposite the Bush House.

—The Presbyterian congregation are indulging in titled clergy. On Sunday, the 20th, it was Rev. Mr. Marquis. Last Sunday Rev. Mr. Prince officiated. Next Sunday Rev. Mr. King will probably occupy the pulpit. What airs they do put on!

—The attendance at the picnic of the Boys' Branch on Friday was quite large, about seventy-five boys going to the grounds at Snow Shoe Intersection beside several other older persons to keep the youthful spirits under proper control.

A Remarkable Man.

Mr. John DeLong, of Brush Valley visited Lock Haven one day last week and encountered one of the reporters of the Daily Journal. The reporter learned that Mr. DeLong is 90 years of age and was surprised to find that at that unusual age he should remain as hale and hearty as most men at 45. Mr. DeDong has been selling farm machinery this summer, and is about closing up the season's business He has sold 44 reapers and mowers and 48 hay rakes, and to accomplish this work he traveled back and forward over 70 miles of territory with a horse and buggy. He walks along the street as rapidly as an ordinary business man, and is as pleasant and communicative as a political aspirant. Mr. DeLong has never been sick, his limbs are as free as ever, and he never suffers from nervousness. For thirty years he taught writing school, and his penmanship is remarkably clear and distinct, not betraying the least show of nervousness in the movements of the pen. He writes rapidly and gracefully, and but for his poor sight would be able to perform this rare accomplishment even better. Failing vision is the only sign of old age he has yet encountered. Judging from Mr. DeLong's present activity and good health, we should judge he is good for twenty or thirty years yet which would give him that rare old age that is attained only by one person in a million. He often visits Bellefonte and many of our citizens can attest to the truth of the above.

—Cigars for the rich and poor at Harry Green's stand in his father's drug store.

—Residents along some of the thoroughfares of the town were somewhat startled at an early hour Friday evening by the appearance of a procession of eight new, brightly-painted carts laden with bags of what looked like feed for stock, preceded by a handsome Conkling wagon. The novel procession attracted much attention and the general decision of the most competent judges is that it was on its way to the new Cato railroad, which is now building near Beech Creek. The horses driven by the traveling party were as fine a collection of such stock as has been seen for many a day, while all the outfit was attractive and showy, worthy of Millionaire Prince Vanderbilt.

—What is home without a mother? Why, it's almost as bad as home without groceries from Sechler's store.

A New Game in Beer Saloons.

A new method of deciding who shall treat when several persons are gathered together is now being practiced in beer saloons. As many lumps of sugar as there are members of the party are produced, and each one selects a lump. They are then placed in a row, and the individuals stand back and anxiously wait for a fly to come along and make a choice. The owner of the sugar on which the insect alights is the one who is to treat the crowd. The fun experienced while awaiting the decision of the fly or flies is said to be worth more than it costs to treat.

—Bright lights on the top of Half Moon hill, on Thursday night, which looked as if they might be the illuminating apparatus of an elevated street in that direction, were plainly discernable from town. A stranger who happened to be stopping here over night thought that it was probably an addition to Bellefonte, sprung up suddenly in view of the Buffalo Run railroad which will be built sometime, and started to walk to it. Arriving there, he was somewhat surprised to discover that it was a novel enterprise originated by the members of the A. M. E. church—a torch-light picnic.

—One day during the early part of last week unknown persons entered the residence of Mrs. Hoover on Spring street and took from the front hall a valuable silk umbrella owned by Miss Franklin, of Philadelphia, who is a guest of Miss Belle Hoover, and also a hat belonging to the last mentioned lady. It would be well to secure houses against all such intruders, as there are persons in our midst who cannot be trusted

—It is predicted that the bicycle will be the especial mode of conveyance among clergymen in taking the long rides which they sometimes find necessary on Sunday. It does not necessitate the use of a horse and therefore cannot be objected to. This is recommended to the consideration of Bellefonte clergymen who preach at State College.

—The Pennsylvania railroad Com. is trying to prevent the L., C. & S. C. R. R. from crossing the Lewisburg and Tyrone Railroad at a point near Lewisburg. They are meeting with considerable opposition.

—A large number of people in town this week.

The centre of population in the United States was twenty-two miles from Baltimore in 1790, and has moved westward at the average rate of about fifty-one miles every decade, never deviating to the extent of a degree north or south of the thirty-ninth parallel. The greatest progress was between the years 1850-60, when it traveled eighty-one miles from a point in Virginia to twenty miles south of Chillicothe, Ohio. This movement was caused by the settlement of the Pacific coast. The centre of population in 1870 was forty-eight miles northeast of Cincinnati. According to the last census, the centre had advanced westward fifty-eight miles, and deflected to the south about eight, being near the village of Taylorsville, Ky., about eight miles from Cincinnati. It is anticipated that the next census will find it in Jennings county, Indiana. Supposing the westward movement of population to continue, the central point should cross the Mississippi about 1950, not far from the mouth of the Missouri. It is considered probable, however, that it will never go so far westward, as there are large areas in the West which are only adapted for mining and grazing pursuits, and will support but a scanty population. The increase in the region beyond the Mississippi, after the close of the present century, may not much more than counterbalance that of the rest of the country, in which case the centre population will remain almost stationary in southern Illinois.

The Sandwich Islands.

The Sandwich Islands, as they were first seen by Captain Cook, have almost disappeared from the world. Death has been busy with them. The survivors have been converted to christianity. The present population of the islands is largely made up of Americans or Europeans, or the descendants of early foreign settlers, and Honolulu is described as quite a handsome and well appointed city. It is about the size of Chester, and is about to be supplied with electric lights, street railways and telegraph cables connecting the city with the Hawaiian Islands. But in spite of the knowledge of the changed condition of affairs in that quarter of the world, it is a hard thing to dismiss from one's mind the picture of the Sandwich Islands presented to us by Captain Cook, and to think of them as being now provided with all the luxuries of modern civilization.

We de undersigned bein' a coroner's jury to set on the body of Sambo, now dead and gone afore, hab been sittin' on de said nigger aforesaid and find dat de same did on de 14 day of Jinerwary come to death by fallin' from de bridge ober de riber an broken his neck whar we find he was subsequently drowned and afterwards washed to de riber side whar we suppose he was froze to death.

"Look into me eyes, me darling, and tell me you are mine?" sang a smooth-faced stripling beneath the cottage window, one dewy eve in June. She looked into his eyes seven years later about the time he was to wed another girl, and vowed to be his unless her damaged affections were poulticed up with a thick swaddling of greenbacks. How constant is woman!

No wonder the powers still hesitate. The Second Regiment of Illinois militia has just received seven recruits.

EDITOR'S TABLE.

NEW MUSIC.—General James A. Beaver's Grand March, by Adam Geibel, has just been issued by Lee & Walker, Philadelphia. This is a very handsome tribute to the subject, as it is sweetly harmonious, and in perfect march time, with the keynote of victory sounding from each chord. The march cannot fail to become very popular as its own merits speak for themselves, and we feel quite sure that every girl in Centre county will want to play the march of our future Governor. On the title page is a perfect likeness of the General. Price 40 cents.

Bi-Centennial March, by Aug. Loumey, is a new march commemorative of the celebration of the two hundredth anniversary of the landing of William Penn. It is a very pretty march embracing several variations of the old time songs, among them a very delightful variation of "My Country, 'tis of thee." It is in good march time, not difficult, and has a very pretty illustrated title page. Price 40 cents. Sold by Lee & Walker, 1113 Chestnut St., Phila.

Walnut Leaf Hair Restorer.

It is entirely different from all others. It is as clear as water, and, as its name indicates, is a perfect Vegetable Hair Restorer. It will immediately free the head from all dandruff, restore gray hair to its natural color, and produce a new growth where it has fallen off. It does not in any manner affect the health, which sulphur, sugar of lead, and nitrate of silver preparations have done. It will change light or faded hair in a few days to a beautiful glossy brown. Ask your druggists for it. Each bottle is warranted. Smith, Kline & Co., Wholesale Agents, Philadelphia, and C. N. Crittenton, New York. 14 24 1y

THE LATEST NEWS.

Probably Not True.

MOBILE, Ala., August 21.—In Choctaw county, Alabama, on the 15th instant, a bundle of papers disclosing a well-organized plot among the negroes to kill the entire white population of that county, was found near one of their rendezvous by two gentlemen. The matter was laid before the solicitor. On Wednesday, the 16th, a quiet meeting of citizens of Mt. Sterling and Butler was called at Butler to consider the best mode of suppressing the intended outbreak and massacre. After discussion it was agreed that the following ringleaders, Jack Turner, P. D. Barney, Jesse Wilson, Peter Hill, William Lymen, Aaron Scott, and Range West, to whom had been assigned the duties of leading the respective squads to Butler, Mt. Sterling, DeSotoville and other places and killing all the whites at each place, should be arrested and lodged in jail. Their arrest was effected on Thursday without any disturbance or bloodshed. The same day a mass meeting of the citizens of all classes was called for Saturday to decide the fate of the prisoners. The plot has been in existence since 1878 and the conspirators now number four hundred. They have powder, shot and guns. They think themselves sufficiently strong to accomplish their fiendish design. Sunday night, the 17th of September, had been appointed as the date of its consummation. The paper further showed that this day was selected because then the whites would be at camp-meeting unarmed and could then offer no resistance. The meeting called for Saturday brought together about seven hundred men, among whom were about one hundred and fifty negroes, who after hearing the papers read, by an almost unanimous vote decided that Jack Turner was a turbulent and dangerous character; a regular firebrand in the community, and that the public demanded his immediate death. He was accordingly hung about 1. 15 p. m. in the presence of the assembled multitude. The crowd then dispursed and all signs of a disturbance ceased. Everything was quiet on Saturday night. The other prisoners are still in jail awaiting further developments.

Tossed by a Bull.

READING, August 20.—Miss Anna Eshleman, eldest daughter of Rev. Jacob L. Eshleman, of Mount Joy township, Lancaster County, received frightful injuries yesterday by being lifted from the ground by an infuriated bull, tossed up and again caught on the horns of the animal and carried some distance from the barnyard to the stable. The young lady was looking at the stock when the bull suddenly made a plunge, knocked her down and quickly caught her on his horns, bellowing at the top of his voice. The screams of the young lady and the noise of the bull attracted the attention of Miss Eshleman's brothers, who attacked the beast with clubs and steel forks and finally succeeded in rescuing her. She was so badly hurt that at first her life was despaired of. There are slight hopes for her recovery.

General Warren's Family.

BOSTON, Aug. 20.—A special despatch to the Journal from Newport says: It was known soon after the death of General G. K. Warren that the financial affairs of the household were in a deplorable condition, as a result solely of the great strain upon the General's resources to pay for plans of the ground which was the scene of the battle of Five Forks, the collection of testimony and the general expenses of the recent court of inquiry. The state of affairs was made known and the result is that a committee to raise funds for the General's family has been formed, and it is expected that a large sum will be raised.

Burned to a Crisp.

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—About 2 o'clock yesterday morning a fire broke out in the Walton House, on East Washington street—a not too reputable locality—and from room 45, where the smoke was thickest, the agonizing screams of a woman were heard. The firemen broke into the room, extinguished the flames, and found Mrs. Frank Flynn lying on a bed burned out of all semblance to a human form, and barely alive. She appears to have overset the kerosene lamp in an insane or drunken frenzy. She was taken to the County Hospital to die. Her flesh was cooked and burned to a crisp.

Dively Done For.

EBENSBURG, Aug. 21.—The return judges of the democratic primaries met here to-day. The following is the vote: For congress—Coffroth, 1,916; Dively, 646. For assembly—Bracken, 973; Christy, 182; Gutwald, 345; Horne, 1,238; McDonald, 1,080; Woodruff, 949. For sheriff—Louther, 1,415; Waters, 1,083. For poor director—Carney, 964; Flick, 259; Rorabaugh, 1,125; Warner, 169. For jury commissioner—Weakland, 2,491. For coroner—Cox, 1,320.

Fatally Wounded.

SHAMOKIN, Pa., August 22.—Howard John, 14 years old, while carelessly handling a revolver this afternoon, fatally shot himself, the ball penetrating the brain.

A Heartless Captain.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., August 22.—The schooner, Fred P. Nye, Captain Smith, while lying to on Seal island ground on Friday afternoon, was run into by an unknown brig, staving in the whole of her stern to the sternpost. She lost her main-sail and main gaff and tore the foresail. Captain Smith, supposing his vessel to be in a sinking condition, requested the master of the brig to stand by and assist him, which he refused to do. Captain Smith had only a fifteen foot dory to carry a crew of sixteen men in case his schooner sank. He succeeded in patching up her stern with duck and lumber and arrived here safely last evening.

Echoes from Egypt.

LONDON, Aug. 23.—The Daily News has the following dispatch:

ALEXANDRIA, Aug. 23.—The gunboat Condor went to Aboukir this morning and returned this evening. She reports that her majesty's ship Achilles is the only man-of-war in the bay, the Sultan having gone to Damietta. Flags of truce were flying from all the Aboukir forts, which appeared to be almost deserted. A party of fifty bedouins crept up last night and pillaged two villages in the vicinity of Meks. They carried off three watchmen with them.

Found Guilty of Murder.

DUBLIN, August 22.—In the commission court to-day Patrick Walsh was found guilty of the murder committed in April, 1881, of Martin Lyden, and he was sentenced by Judge Lamson to be hanged on September 2. Lord Spencer has declined to hold an inquiry into the conduct of the jury who convicted Hynes, but he intends to examine the affidavits submitted to him in that case in order to ascertain if sufficient grounds exist for interfering with the due course of law.

Mifflin County Democrats.

LEWISTOWN, Pa., Aug. 21.—The democratic nominations to-day are as follows: Congress, A. Reed; assembly, Dr. W. H. Parcels; director of the poor, David Norton; jury commissioner, W. H. McCoy, auditor, John Barr; congressional conferees, Dr. J. A. Swartz, R. H. Lee, James C. Dysart—no instructions. Delegates to the state convention, Dr. A. H Sheaffer, D. J. Powell; chairman of the county committee, T. J. Frow.

Breaker Boys on a Strike.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Aug. 21.—The breaker boys at the Warrior run colliery, a few miles from this city, struck to-night for an advance of ten per cent. on their wages. It is claimed by them that all the mine employes in their neighborhood received the advance and they demand the same. In order not to shut down the mine the carpenters and blacksmiths are occupying the places of the strikers.

Attempt to Assassinate.

LONDON, August 21.—A dispatch from Milbourne to Reuter's telegram company says: "Archbishop Goold, of the Roman Catholic diocese, has been shot at and slightly woulded. His assailant has been arrested. He is named O'Farrel and is a brother to the man who attempted to assassinate the Duke of Edinburgh at Sydney in 1868."

The Cohoes Strike.

TROY, N. Y., Aug. 21.—The strike of the Cohoes operatives is virtually ended. When the mill gates were opened this morning the largest number of strikers that have yet applied for work flocked in. It is expected that the mills will shortly be running with their full number of hands.

Engine House Burned.

SHENANDOAH, Pa., Aug. 21.—The engine house of the Turkey run colliery at this place, containing two large hoisting engines, was destroyed by fire this evening. Loss, $5,000; no insurance. Cause of fire unknown. Three hundred men and boys will be idle for about a week.

The Grangers' Picnic

HARRISBURG, Aug. 22.—There was a very small attendance at the grangers picnic to-day. The display of fireworks announced for to-night was postponed on account of the rain. The display of agricultural implements and this year's crops is the finest ever seen on the grounds.

A Somnambulist's Fall.

NORRISTOWN, Aug. 22.—David Hunter, aged twenty-four, a boarder at Harrold's saloon, in Conshohocken, walked out of a third-story window early this morning while asleep. He injured himself severely. He was removed to the Pennsylvania hospital.

Kellogg for Congress

DONALDSVILLE, La., August 22.—Governor Kellogg received the nomination for congress at the regular republican convention. The boiters nominated Mr. Beattie. There was much interest manifested in the rival conventions, but no disturbance occurred.

Delaware Democrats.

DOVER, Del., August 22.—At the democratic convention to-day Charles C. Stockley was nominated for governor on the first ballot. Charles B. Lore was nominated for congress by acclamation.

The Team Practicing.

NEW YORK, August 22.—The American rifle team assembled at Creedmoor to-day for the first practice as a unit. No official record was kept, but on the whole the shooting was splendid.

Prohibition.

CHICAGO, Ill., August 23.—The national prohibition convention met in Farwell hall this morning at 10 o'clock. Some three hundred delegates were present. Some states were represented very largely, and some of the more distant are not represented at all.

Gideon T. Stewart of Ohio, chairman of the national prohibition reform executive committee, called the convention to order.

Rev. John Russell, of Michigan, was elected temporary chairman. He also spoke in favor of a grand national prohibition party.

Phoebe Cozzens, of St. Louis, and May B. Willard, of Chicago, were elected secretaries.

Mr. Young, of Iowa, representing one of three Iowa delegations, asked if the delegates not committed to the third party movement, though in full sympathy with prohibition, were to be excluded. His delegation wanted to know before submitting credentials; if barred out they would go to work on their own lines.

The chairman said those would be barred out who had not abandoned affiliation with the democratic, republican, greenback or any other party that had not declared in favor of the liquor traffic.

A committee on credentials was then named.

Mrs. S. A. Brown and Rev. Arthur Edwards delivered addresses of welcome, and J. B. Finch, of Nebraska, responded.

The convention then took a recess.

The convention reassembled at 2 p. m. and effected a permanent organization with T. D. Kanouse as president. A number of addresses were made on the condition of the prohibition cause in the various states, after which the convention adjourned until to-morrow.

Independent Republicans.

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 23.—The independent republican party announces the following platform:

Upon full consultation and correspondence with leading men in all parts of the state, the following platform has been adopted for an independent republican party:

First. A thorough and systematic reform in all branches of the civil service.

Second. A faithful execution of the law in all parts of the state, including the liquor law and the laws for the observance of the Sabbath, having temperance without hypocrisy and prohibition without drunkenness.

Third. A strict economy in the expenditure of public money and a consequent reduction of taxes.

Fourth. Opposition to machine politics, "boss" rule, political assessments, bribery and fraud in controlling elections and conventions.

A meeting of the executive committee will be held at the Brunswick depot at 11 o'clock next Saturday morning.

Michigan Democrats.

JACKSON, Mich., Aug. 23.—The democratic state convention met here to-day and after appointing committees took a recess. Sentiment is divided with reference to fusion with the greenbackers, it being understood that the latter want the head of the ticket. A large number of members think that too high a price to pay and are disposed to nominate a straight ticket. An effort at fusion will, however be made.

Murderer Lynched.

DENVER, Col., Aug. 22.—Rymer, who killed McGarney near Fort Scott last Friday, was taken from jail at West Los Animus on the night of the 20th and hanged by a mob of forty or fifty masked men, supposed to be soldiers from the fort. Major Brayton, commanding at the fort, is exercising all the diligence in his power to ferret out the men who composed the mob.

A Compromise Effected.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Aug. 22.—A meeting of the striking miners of No. 2 colliery of the Red Ash coal company was held here this afternoon. The operators refused to advance their wages. A compromise was then effected by replacing the men they had discharged. This met the approval of the strikers, who will return to work to-morrow.

Suspension.

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—The New Jersey Central company, Pennsylvania coal company, Delaware and Hudson canal company, Lehigh Valley company, Delaware, Lackawanna and Western company and the Philadelphia and Reading company have agreed to suspend coal mining on the 31st of August and the 1st, 2nd, 7th, 8th and 9th of September.

Independents of Maine

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 22.—The independent republicans held a meeting here yesterday and another to-day, at which the following nominations were made: Governor, Warren N. Vinton; congressmen, First district, James M. Stone; Second district, Nelson Dingley; Third district, Charles Nash; Fourth district, Daniel A. Stickney.

Fusion Favored.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., August 23.—The state greenback convention met here to-day. Two thirds of the numbers favor fusion with the democrats, and a collection was taken up to defray telegraphic expenses between this city and Jackson, where the democratic convention is in session.

Boiler Explosion.

SULLIVAN, Ind., August 22.—The boiler of A. B. Perkins & Co.'s saw mill exploded last night. George Inglewright, Irwin Baily and George Morns were probably fatally injured.

A member of a fashionable congregation called at a music store and inquired, "Have you notes of a piece called 'The Song of Solomon?' adding, "Our pastor referred to it yesterday as an exquisite gem, and my wife would like to learn to play it."

An Array of Facts.

Special Telegram.

CAIRO, N. Y.—Charles Hoffman, of this place, says: "I have used for a year or more Baxter's Mandrake Bitters and find they have been very beneficial to me, in fact cured me of dyspepsia in its worst form." Isaac Hoffman and Frank Rennie have also been cured of sick headache and dyspepsia by their use. Westel Salsbury says they have been used by himself and family to great advantage; have cured his daughter of sick headache. The Bitters seem to be just the thing for the diseases for which they are recommended. E. C. STEVENS.

"Mr. D., if you'll get my coat done by Saturday I shall be forever indebted to you." "If that's your game it won't be done," said the tailor.

Good Words from Druggists.

"Malt Bitters are the best 'bitters.'"

"They promote sleep and allay nervousness."

"Best liver and kidney medicine we sell."

"They knock the 'Chills' every time."

"Consumptive people gain flesh on them."

"Malt Bitters have no rivals in this own."

"Best thing for nursing mothers we have."

"We like to recommend Malt Bitters."

When Sir George Rose was dining on one occasion with the late Lord Langdale, his host was speaking of the very diminutive church in Langdale of which his lordship was patron. "It is not bigger," said Lord Langdale, "than this dining-room." "No," returned Sir George, "and the living not half so good."

A Wise Word from Addison.

Says Addison: "Health and cheerfulness mutually beget each other." There are volumes of truth in this. It is difficult to look at the world through cherry glasses, when disease has set in upon the loins and back, and when the liver and kidneys are out of order. But cheerfulness returns with Hunt's Remedy, the great kidney and liver medicine, because it brings health to the afflicted. The aching back, the sallow skin, the hollow eye, the distressing feeling, the bent body, the despondent mind, give way before Hunt's Remedy to the bloom of health, the bounding step, the cheerful spirit, the renewed strength, and to a prolonged lease of vigorous life.

An up-country man bought a Roman candle and lighted it to go to bed by. He says you can bet your sweet life he'll lick the man that loaded it, if he can find him out.

I have been a sufferer for years with catarrh, and under a physician's treatment for over a year, have tried a number of "sure cure" remedies and obtained no relief I was advised to try Ely's Cream Balm. It gave me immediate relief. I believe I am now entirely cured. G. S. DAVIS, First National Bank, Elizabeth, N. J., Aug. 14, 1879.

E. W. Brant, Druggist, Elizabeth, N. J.—I could scarcely speak above a whisper, and it was almost impossible to breathe through my nostrils. Using Ely's Cream Balm a short time I was entirely relieved. My head has not been so clear nor my voice so strong in years. I have warded off several colds since. I recommend this admirable remedy to all who are afflicted with catarrh or colds in the head. J. O. TICHNOR, Dealer in Boots and Shoes. June 15, 1879.

Death of James Martin.

The readers of this journal will regret to hear of the death of the gentleman whose name forms the subject of this brief notice. The sad event occurred on Wednesday, the 16th of August, at his home near Nittany. A friend of the deceased sends us the following facts in reference to his life and death which we publish. He writes:

This excellent Christian man was born November 24, A. D. 1815, in Dauphin county, near Harrisburg, from whence he removed to Centre county in the year A. D. 1836, where he resided up to the time of his death. He was 66 years, 8 months and 22 days old. He identified himself with God's people by joining the Presbyterian church, of which he remained a consistent member until the dear Master said to him: "It is enough; come up higher."

He was a Godly man, as his life always attested. He believed in the necessity of conversion, and holiness of heart and life, and ever bore with him a living testimony that God dwells with man in the power of the Spirit. The graces of love, meekness, charity and untiring zeal found in him a rare illustration, and while his life was an eminent exhibition of a Christian character, his death bore equal testimony to the Christian's triumph.

About eleven years ago the hand of affliction fell upon him, His disease was inflammatory rheumatism. The suffering and pain this devout Christian man endured during this time no pen can describe. Yet, notwithstanding this, when called upon he was never heard to murmur, nor even to express a wish to be relieved of his severe affliction, but endured it patiently until the final summons was sent from on high. He leaves to mourn his loss a widow and six children, all of whom were present to witness his burial, excepting one daughter, Mrs. Barr, who resides in Montgomery county.

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Sechrist, Lutheran minister of this charge. He chose for his remarks the first chapter of Philippians, twenty-first verse: "For to me to live is Christ, to die is gain," from which he delivered a very able and appropriate sermon. Rev. Haughawaut, Presbyterian minister of Mill Hall, spoke a short time at the grave, his remarks being quite impressive. The community have indeed lost a kind and affectionate citizen. We sympathize with the family in their sad bereavement, although their loss is only his gain.

—A reporter of the Lock Haven Daily Journal recently visited the new railroad now being laid near Beech Creek and gives some of the information obtained while on that expedition in the following, which we quote: "Tom Collins' gang is at work on Hurthal Summit, back of Snow Shoe, where a forty-foot cut will be required, and where the road will run under the Snow Shoe road. The coal in this region, as elsewhere, is found above a measure of conglomerate rock, which, in the anthracite regions, is very low. Here it is near the tops of the mountains, and the coal is therefore found at an elevation of from 500 to 600 feet above the creek, and will have to be taken down an incline plane or in schutes. It is estimated that there are 200,000,000 tons along Beech Creek east of the Summit. Of this, 80,000,000 tons, underlying 17,000 acres of land, is owned by the Midland Mining Company, of which H. T. Harvey, Esq., of this city, is attorney, and of which Judge Orvis is also a member. The balance is owned by various persons, among whom are Croskey & Sailor, who have about 700,000 acres and Gen. James A. Beaver and D. G. Bush, Esq., of Bellefonte.

The "Process" all Right.

We are informed that the process of manufacturing superior iron from pig iron that is too inferior to make even the ordinary quality by any other process, as has been attempted at the steel works in this place, is not a failure, but has not yet been tested under favorable conditions. As it is, however, iron equal to the best Norway in quality has been produced. The present difficulty is that the furnace is not complete in all particulars and the assistants are not as skilled as the gentleman who controls the process desires. It is altogether probable that the trial will not be repeated here. In proof of the fact that Mr. Henderson, the constructor of the furnace, has implicit faith in the "process," he has offered to remove it to another place and the offer has been refused.

—By some strange combination of circumstances the doors of the First National Bank were thrown open before the town clock struck the hour of nine one morning recently. It is hoped the consequences will not be fatal.

Experience of a Newspaper Scribe.

Yesterday we came upon a bit of life history which so correctly describes the experience of a man who is ambitious for place and position in newspaper work that we give it to our readers:

A good many people think that newspaper work is just as easy as falling down on ice or finding a girl's lips in the dark. We used to think so ourself, but that was when we were a bigger fool than we are now. We knew a young man once, out west, who for two years longed for a place on a newspaper as reporter, and at last he got it. The first two days he was required to report a horse race, a temperance meeting and a fire seven miles out of town. After he had done all this, the managing editor told him he might write a Washington letter, giving a summary of the political situation at the national capital, and then he could go out and get some points on the pork market for the next day's paper. He wanted to know how in the dread future he could write a Washington letter at a point 714 miles from the national capital, and when he had never been there in his life. The managing editor coolly replied that "if he couldn't write a letter from any point in the known world on fifteen minutes notice, he'd better quit the newspaper business before he disgraced it." He resigned that same evening, and went back to his old counting-house stool, and his old time, independent, ten-dollars-a-week air, and never asked to be a journalist again. Some men seem to be born to do newspaper work, and they will do it if they have to live on cold hash and button their coat up to their chin while their only shirt is in the wash. And they will be just as happy, too, as the son-in-law of a monopolist with a bad cough. They would never be contented in any other calling, even if it paid them $10,000 a year and firewood. All others should keep out of the journalistic field.

Railroad Promotions.

It is understood that when First Vice President Cassatt resigns his position in the Pennsylvania Railroad company on October 1 Mr. Edmund Smith will be made first vice president. He will continue his present duties, which embrace the financial and accounting departments of the road. Mr. Frank Thompson, now general manager, will become second vice president, and succeed to Mr. Cassatt's duties, which comprise particularly the supervision of the transportation department, the management of the passenger and freight business, and the special charge of the relations with connecting and competing lines. In 1874 Mr. Thompson was Mr. Cassatt's successor as general manager. Mr. Charles E. Pugh, general superintendent, will be advanced to general manager. Mr. Pugh's successor has not been announced, though Mr. Prevost, superintendent of the Philadelphia division, is mentioned in that connection. —Altoona Tribune.

—Improvements at the Mill Hall Furnace, says the Lock Haven Daily Journal, are being pushed rapidly, and in several weeks at the farthest the concern will be in operation as a charcoal cold blast furnace. The old brick hearth has been torn out, and one of stone will be put in, the stack will be made a foot higher and surmounted by a chimney of due proportions. The new firm, Cooper Stephenson & Co., will probably use Valentines' ore, but they are anxious for the people of Nittany to open their deposits. They offer to pay cash, and of course nobody can lose money. Messrs. Stephenson & Co. control the Patent Continuous Roll, from which a strip of iron from 27 to 30 inches wide and more than 200 feet long can be made on one roll. In case they succeed, a rolling mill will be erected. The men are active, go-a-head fellows with twenty-six years' experience and, it is said, lots of capital to back them.

—Stewart, the Independent candidate for Governor, is a very unpopular man in his own county, Franklin. There is not one Republican in a hundred who will support him, and his fellow-citizens refused even to give him a reception when he returned from the convention. He has only to visit this county to learn the sentiment in favor of the regular Republican candidate, and if he is endowed with the least proportion of good sense he will at once withdraw, thus removing every semblance of division from the party.

—An incident occurred on the 18th instant which might offer a reason for Bellefonters to be thankful that the young men of this place are not excited on the base ball question. B. F. McCloskey died at Plumville, this State, from a complication of disorders directly traceable to the part he took in a game of base ball played in the town of Indiana about two weeks before.

—Mrs. Fleming, mother-in-law of Mr. John Pacini, of this place, died on Sunday, the 19th, and on Monday her body was taken to Huntingdon county for interment.

—An individual wearing an odd-shaped hat, beneath which long, straight black hair might be seen, stood on the street corners on Monday afternoon, apparently much interested in the contemplation of vacancy, his peculiar appearance attracting notice. He pretends to be a Doctor and is in the habit of giving out-door lectures and selling medicines, but Burgess Powers asked him something like $20 for carrying on his business in Bellefonte, which made Dr. Carlton open his eyes very wide and resolve to go elsewhere.

—Quite a serious freight wreck occurred at Beech Creek on Tuesday, the 22d, two cars—one of them the cabin car—leaving the track at that point. News of the disaster was received here about 8 o'clock p. m. and a wreck train was sent to the scene of the disaster. The track was not entirely cleared in time to permit the passage of the passenger train and the passengers were transferred to another train and conveyed to Lock Haven.

—At the meeting of the borough council on Monday evening that body approved of the laying of a 3-inch water pipe from the Thomas mansion to the railroad crossing near the glass works. An application was also received from Daniel McGinley for pay for serving notices of water tax for the years 1871, '72, '73 and '74. His bill is $40, or $10 per annum.

—Jack Turner, an Alabama negro, was hanged by the indignant citizens a few days ago as the person most prominently connected with the plot to murder the white people of Choctaw county, that State. A rather turbulent character who inhabited Bellefonte some time ago bore the same name, but the persons are probably not identical.

—As a partial off-set to our local on tobacco in last week's issue, we have received the following: "At Centre county's convention of Sunday-school workers at Centre Hill, last Thursday, no person was seen using tobacco. It may have been done, but certainly was not seen by one who was present all day and in regard to such things is a close OBSERVER."

The Cattle Nuisance.

Between twelve and one o'clock one morning of last week a half-dozen or more cows paced up and down the side-walk on East Linn street, testing the gates, disturbing the sleepers and annoying the sick. When will the decency and good order of our town be restored by arresting this disturbance of the peace? When?

—The water was turned off the race last Wednesday and operations were temporarily suspended at the several establishments run by the water power which it affords. A small army of boys took advantage of the occasion to enter the sluggish stream in quest of the fish which are so easily caught when the water is low.

—Mrs. Margaret Mayer, mother of President Judge Charles A. Mayer, died at the residence of her daughter, Mrs Cordie Quiggle, in Wayne township, on Monday night, the 21st inst. She was 82 years old. The funeral took place from Judge Mayer's residence in Lock Haven on Thursday afternoon.

—A strike among the miners in the Snow Shoe region was caused by the refusal of the employers to allow them the privilege of a check-weighman. It seems quite proper that miners should be represented by a check-weighman, and we do not understand upon what grounds the employers can base their refusal.

—The Logan Hose Company, of this place, express the confident belief that their picnic on the first of September will be the most successful ever given by them. They expect to make a little money out of the poor printers.

—Tramps are numerous in some sections of the county, very few coming to the large towns.

Cuticura
THE NEW BLOOD PURIFIER
Resolvent

I will now state that I made a miraculous cure of one of the worst cases of skin disease known. The patient is a man forty years old; had suffered fifteen years. His eyes, scalp and nearly his whole body presented a frightful appearance. Had had the attention of twelve different physicians, who prescribed the best remedies known to the profession, such as iodide potassium, arsenic, corrosive sublimate, sarsaparilla, etc. Had paid $500 for medical treatment with but little relief. I prevailed upon him to use Cuticura Resolvent internally, and the Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally. He did so and was completely cured. The skin on his head, face, and many other parts of his body, which presented a most loathsome appearance, is now as soft and smooth as an infant's, with no scar or trace of the disease left behind. He has now been cured twelve months.
Reported by F. H. BROWN, Esq., Barnwell, S. C.

SCROFULA SORE.

Rev. Dr. ——, in detailing his experience with the Cuticura Remedies, said that through Divine Providence one of his parishioners was cured of a scrofulous sore, which was slowly draining away his life, by the Cuticura Resolvent internally, and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally. The poison that had fed the disease was completely driven out.

ECZEMA.

Sixteen months since an eruption broke out on my legs and both feet, which turned out to be Eczema, and caused me great pain and annoyance. I tried various remedies with no good results, until I used the Cuticura Resolvent internally, and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally, which entirely cured me so that my skin is as smooth and natural as ever.
LEN. M. FRAILEY, 64 South St., Baltimore.

CUTICURA.

The Cuticura treatment for the cure of Skin, Scalp and Blood Diseases, consists in the internal use of Cuticura Resolvent, the new Blood Purifier, and the external use of Cuticura and Cuticura Soap, the Great Skin Cures.

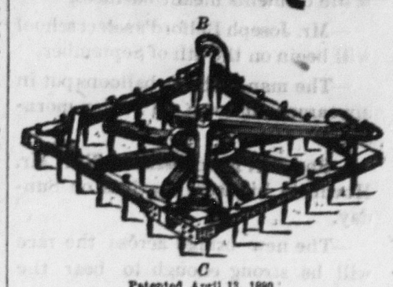
THE PENN
HARROW
BEST IN THE WORLD
IT HAS NO EQUAL

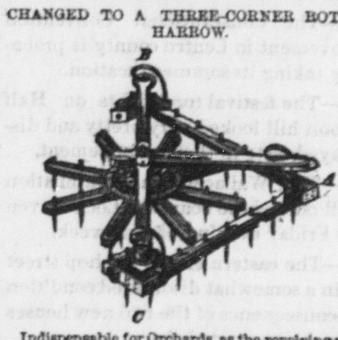


Patented April 13, 1880.

The above cut represents the Penn Harrow complete, with all its combinations of Five Harrows and a sled for each Harrow; and each succeeding change is made from this Harrow without the least additional expense. By hooking the team to either point, B or C, the center revolves and gives the ground Two Strokes and Two Crossings in passing over it once, making it the most effective pulverizer in the market.

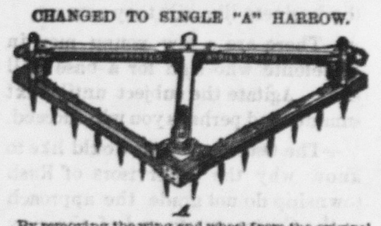
THIS HARROW HAS ONLY TO BE USED TO BE APPRECIATED.
See it before purchasing and you will buy no other.

The Penn Harrow
CHANGED TO A THREE-CORNER ROTARY HARROW.



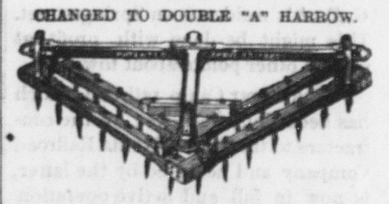
Indispensable for Orchards, as the revolving wheel harrows right up to and all around the trees without barking them.

The Penn Harrow
CHANGED TO SINGLE "A" HARROW.



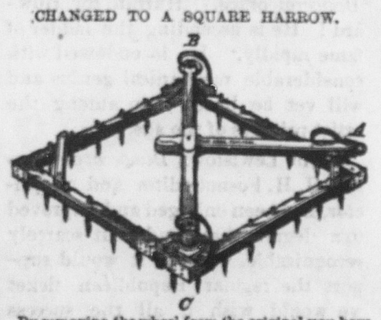
By removing the wing and wheel from the original you have a complete one-horse "A" Harrow.

The Penn Harrow
CHANGED TO DOUBLE "A" HARROW.



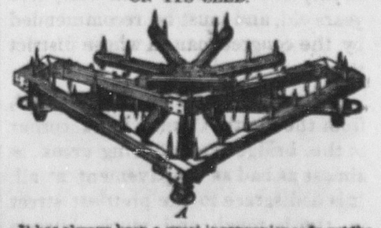
Remove the wheel from the original, reverse the wing, and it makes the most complete Double "A" Harrow in the market.

The Penn Harrow
CHANGED TO A SQUARE HARROW.



By removing the wheel from the original you have a Harrow with three points to hook to. By hooking to B or C you can harrow in a furrow, and harrow the bottom and both sides, or over a ridge and harrow the top and both sides, or you can lift either point and have three points on the ground—something that cannot be done with any other Harrow.

The Penn Harrow
ON ITS SLED.



It has always been a great inconvenience to get the Harrow to and from the field. The Penn Harrow obviates this, as no matter which Harrow you wish to use in the combination, it has its own sled to haul it on.

The Penn Harrow

Is made of the best white oak, with steel teeth, well painted, in every way first-class. Formerly a harrow was the most unhandy implement on the farm; with our improvement it is the most convenient, will do double the work of any other harrow and save the farmer half his labor, and is warranted to do all we represent or money refunded. ORDER AT ONCE AND BE CONVINCED.

Price of the light draft Combination Penn Harrow, $30. Send for a Catalogue and see what farmers say.

Bellefonte Republican.

EDWARD T. TUTEN. - - Editor.

Terms, $2.00 per annum in Advance

Local Department.

—"Uncle Tom's Cabin" troupes are hovering near.

—The rain descended on Sunday as if the elements meant business.

—Mr. Joseph Belford's select school will begin on the 4th of September.

—The man with toy balloons put in appearance in town on Friday morning.

—Rev. Mr. Field assisted Rev. Mr. Hewitt in his usual services on Sunday.

—The new bridge across the race will be strong enough to bear the weight of an engine.

—Peaches are so abundant in some parts of the South that they are selling for 10 cents a bushel.

—Williamsport will have rubber works, $100,000 having been subscribed for that purpose.

—According to the common mode of reckoning, last Sunday was the last Sabbath of summer, 1882.

—The Constitutional Convention movement in Centre county is probably taking its summer vacation.

—The festival torchlights on Half-Moon hill looked very pretty and displayed taste in their arrangement.

—The Wallace-Villa Combination will occupy the boards at Lock Haven on Friday evening of this week.

—The eastern end of Bishop street is in a somewhat disordered condition in consequence of the two new houses now being erected there.

—All the attorneys are busy; or at least they pretend that the success of the present term of court depends on the business like airs they assume.

—There are a few young men in Bellefonte who sigh for a base ball club. Agitate the subject until next summer and perhaps you will succeed.

—The Osceola Reveille would like to know why the supervisors of Rush township do not grade the approach to the Centre county end of the new bridge.

—The grass and weeds are being cleared from the gutter in front of D. G. Bush's residence on Spring street. This might be done with profit at several other points about town.

—The Sugar Camp railroad, which has been delivered over by the contractors to the Pennsylvania Railroad Company and accepted by the latter, is now in full and active operation the first cars being run on it last Wedneday.

—Mr. Howard Spangler has been promoted to the foremanship of the Democrat office. Hurrah, for Howard! He is ascending the ladder of fame rapidly. He is endowed with considerable mechanical genius and will yet be heard from among the artist printers of the age.

—The Lewistown Democrat and Sentinel, J. H. Fosnot editor and proprietor, has been enlarged and improved to a degree that renders it scarcely recognizable. Now if it would support the regular Republican ticket we would wish it all the success which its enterprise deserves.

—There are three positions at the disposal of Postmaster Burrows, of Williamsport, with salaries of $600 or $800 each. They are for letter carriers, who must not be less than twenty-one nor more than forty-five years old, and must be recommended by the congressman in whose district they live.

—The pavement on High street, from the Centre County Bank corner to the bridge across Spring creek, is almost as bad as no pavement at all. It is a disgrace to the prettiest street in the borough and much detracts from the appearance of the handsome new bank building. Lay a new pavement, gentlemen, before winter comes.

—How many Bellefonte ladies, impudently interrogates the Osceola Reveille, will get "mashed" on the handsome (?) "comps" who will invade that town next Friday? Bellefonte ladies are not so easily "mashed;" but if the aforesaid "comps" bring any hearts with them they will not carry them back. Bellefonte ladies will capture them without an effort.

—The M. E. denominations in this place make the most frequent use of their church edifices. Every night both buildings are brilliantly illuminated and meetings of some description are in progress. This is a commendable plan. All church buildings should be open constantly that persons may enter for worship and meditation whenever they feel like doing so.

SUMMER RAMBLING.

A Visit to Mont Vernon, a Pleasant Resort Located in the New Hampshire Hills.

Editorial Correspondence.

MONT VERNON, Aug. 20, 1882.—After a ten days' journey eastward, stopping here and there for a rest and to visit some point of interest, ye editor arrived at this breezy New Hampshire retreat on the 12th inst. in pretty fair condition, all things considered—in fact, in much better condition than my baggage, which looked, after the stage driver had given it a good-bye toss, as though it had been shot out of a cannon against a stone wall. However, we shouldn't complain at such trifles as these. The life of a baggage-wrecker is not a rosy one, and no one should begrudge him the opportunity of departing from his prosaic ways occasionally long enough to smash in the head of a trunk or kick a hole in a firkin of butter. To deny him this pleasure, which is now looked upon by the profession as an inherited right, would be un-American.

Mont Vernon is located in Hillsboro' county, sixty miles from Boston, and is reached via. the Boston and Lowell R. R. to Milford, where connection is made with the Mont Vernon and New Boston stages. That part of the journey accomplished by steam is very pleasant and enjoyable. The road lays through a fertile and thickly settled country and the passenger looks out now upon a pretty bit of landscape and now upon the spires of a busy city or town. For ten or fifteen miles the track skirts the shores of the river Merrimac, a broad, powerful stream which drives a vast amount or mill machinery in the cities of Lowell and Nashua. The latter part of the trip, however, I cannot recommend as embracing any particularly bewitching features. Under some conditions a stage ride is not unpleasant. But these conditions did not prevail on the 12th, at least to my knowledge, and one hour and a half of solid agony was the result. The road to Mont Vernon is both sandy and rocky, a three-mile-an-hour road, or a trifle slower, according to the quantity of the oats consumed by the stage horses. On the day in question nothing was lacking that could add to the general disagreeableness of the journey. A runaway, or even a breakdown, would have been gladly welcomed by all on board as a means of diverting our thoughts from a moody contemplation of our miseries. But no relief came. Not a breath of air was stirring, the sun poured down its scorching rays in broadsides, and the dust and sand drifted into the windows in suffocating quantities. But as we neared our journey's end and began the ascent of a long, steep hill, a fresh breeze sprung up which swept through the rigging of the coach in a most refreshing manner. The clouds of dust rolled away into the valley and when, a few minutes later, we entered the village on the mount, we were enabled once more to breathe without the use of a screen. Mont Vernon is rather picturesquely located at an altitude of about 1,000 feet above the sea, and commands an unbroken view of the surrounding country in every direction. On a clear day vessels can be plainly seen in Boston harbor, sixty miles distant. In the west the Lyndeborough mountains loom up in view from summit to base, and to the northward one of the lofty peaks of the White Mountain range peeps up from behind its less pretentious neighbors. Mont Vernon is considered one of the healthiest locations in New England. No where do the breezes blow cooler or purer than they do here. The air is as light as an editor's purse and as bracing as the fumes from a steaming cup of Java. Persons with weak lungs notice the change in the atmosphere immediately. The morning after my arrival I started out for an after-breakfast jaunt, but had proceeded but a short distance when a pain in the chest warned me to partake sparingly of the atmospherical food of this section. It should be taken in mild doses and gradually increased. As proof of the general healthfulness of the place I need only mention the fact that eight of her five hundred inhabitants have passed their 80th year and still enjoy good health. Four of the number are in their 90th year and the combined ages of four foot up 350 years. The citizens, or those that I have seen, have a healthy, robust appearance, particularly the young ladies, a sight of whose rosy cheeks and sparkling eyes would cause such an appreciative fellow as S. D. Ray to forget his business trials for a month, and might possibly induce so sedate a personage as Al. Dale to take a second observation. Many residents of the place are retired farmers who have settled down to a quiet and comfortable existence amid the scenes of their life's labors, and the merchant prince who sips his Madeira from goblets of gold, or the railway king who crosses the continent in his sixteen-wheeled palace, is not more happy or contented. The industries of Mont Vernon are not numerous, a hand mirror manufactory being the most important. This establishment is in a flourishing condition and turns out mirrors in such numbers as to make it impossible, one would suppose, for any one in the vicinity to suffer for want of a chance to inspect the back of his head. The citizens worship at one sanctuary, orthodox, and are dependent upon one store for their groceries and dry goods. Telegraphic communication with Milford has recently been established, and with two mails a day each way, her people manage to keep pretty well informed of the doings of the outside world. As a summer resort Mont Vernon has figured quite prominently for many years, and the presence here this summer of parties from Montreal is evidence that its fame is still spreading. It is a favorite spot with Bostonians and some New York families who come here year after year and never tire of its attractions. The hotels and boarding houses are crowded this season, and about every spare room in the village has been fitted up and pressed into service.

The long continued drouth in this section is occasioning considerable alarm. The old inhabitants say that nothing like it has occurred in this part of the country for many years. It is six weeks and over since Mont Vernon was visited by a rain of any consequence and as a natural result the earth is parched and dried up like the Greenback party of Centre county, and the fields and pastures look as though they had been swept by flames. A number of wells have already given out, and fears are entertained of a water famine unless a copious rain comes soon to replenish the springs and streams.

And now I will close, as I have exhausted the weather and several other subjects, (and possibly my readers) and have occupied too much space to think of introducing a new one. In conclusion, I will just say that overcoats are worn here at noonday, and purple noses from 6 to 9 a. m. Ice has not yet formed, but Jack Frost has approached within four miles of us and a wood fire in the evenings feels comfortable. What has Bellefonte to say of such a record as this for the middle of August?

The Boys' Branch Picnic.

The day in the woods which the members of the Boys' Branch of the Y. M. C. A. took advantage of on Friday was fully as enjoyable as was anticipated. The party left town in the large hack, the vehicle being compelled to make the trip twice to carry all the boys, the older members of the party going to the grounds in the cars.

When the last member of the party arrived, the first question that saluted his ears was "Is it dinner time yet?" and this question was frequently repeated until the viands were spread before the hungry boys. The quantity consumed was enormous, but their appetites were sufficiently appeased before all the good things had disappeared, Hal. Orbison and J. W. Miller being the only persons upon whom the faintest shadow of suspicion rests of not having eaten enough.

Before dinner an appetizer in the way of a game of base ball was indulged in. The sides were captained by Harry Green and Hal. Orbison, respectively, the game resulting in a victory for the former by a score of 16 to 9.

After dinner there was an exciting "tug of war," twenty-one of the picnicers on either side taking hold of a long, heavy piece of rope and tugging at it with "might and main." We forget the leaders of the opposing factions in this contest, but it was the occasion of much sport as well as of physical benefit.

Another diversion was a foot race in which seven took part, Messrs. Washington Rees and James Hughes evincing the highest running speed and arriving at the goal in the order named. More base ball concluded the active sport of the day.

On the way home the tired but merry party sang snatches of songs and cheered for everybody, their good will in this respect being unreserved and their enthusiasm boundless.

All are of opinion that a hack is the most enjoyable means of transportation to and from picnic grounds.

—The anncuncement of the festivities to take place on the day of the Logan Hose company's picnic, September 1, are of quite an elaborate description. They include a fine parade through the principal streets and a brilliant display of fireworks in the evening. We hope the programme will be successfully carried out.

—Copious draughts of hot water immediately after rising in the morning are said to be a certain cure for dyspepsia, headache and similar ailments.

Serious Railroad Collision near Tyrone.

The 10 o'clock a. m. train was very late last Thursday—"two or three hours" being the announcement at the railroad station, and persons who had gathered at the depot retired to their homes to await its arrival. A serious "freight wreck" was reported to be the cause of the delay and the fact that sixteen cars were said to be piled upon one another at the scene of the accident certainly gave reason enough for the long detention of the train. Various rumors were circulated in regard to the real nature of the accident, in some of which there appears to be more or less truth. It is said that there was a collision between a passenger and a freight train between Tyrone and Vail, and that the engines of both trains and sixteen cars of the freight are a total wreck. It is also rumored that Al. Mills, a conductor on one of the trains, was killed and persons named Ammerman and Foster seriously injured.

LATER.

The rumors given above are true, excepting that both trains were freight and one of the men seriously hurt was William Blair. It is thought that Ammerman and Blair will not recover. One of the firemen was also seriously injured. The accident occurred about half a mile west of Vail.

The Railroad Collision.

The Altoona Tribune gives the following account of the railroad collision on the Bald Eagle Valley Railroad, on Friday morning:

At about 7 o'clock two freight trains collided between Vail station and East Tyrone, on the Bald Eagle Valley railroad, killing conductor Al. Mills and seriously, perhaps fatally, wounding a number of the trainmen and engineers. No. 12, running north to the Summit on schedule time, with no intimation of a special from Lock Haven running on her schedule, and a dense fog rendering it impossible to see more than fifty to seventy-five feet ahead, plunged into the south bound train, no one having any idea of what had happened till walking front the train was noticed. It is thought the cause of the accident was carelessness on the part of some one.

Conductor Mills was wedged in between the boiler and the tank, the latter with a quantity of coal on top of him and the steam and boiling water from the boiler pouring in torrents over him. His entire face, arms, hands and body were terribly scalded, right hand and arm crushed and skull crushed in. His death is supposed to have been instantaneous. He leaves a wife and two small children to mourn his sudden and terrible death. He was in his 21st year.

Mr. John Foster sustained internal injuries and his case is considered critical. He is a single man. Engineer William Blair, of the south bound train, was badly bruised. There are also deep cuts about his head and face. Decatur Smith has one arm broken and is literally covered with cuts and gashes, being a brakeman and in the worst part of the wrecked cars. L. A. Smith, brakeman, hurt in the back. Nathaniel Woomer, brakeman, shoulder hurt. John Wingate, engineer, leg badly cut and bruised. Engineer Farrel's hurts are principally in the hip and back, and William Ammerman, engineer of the lead engine, going north, received cuts and bruises about the forehead and also has a sprained knee.

—It is unlawful to shoot any gray fox or black squirrel before September 1st; hare or rabbit before November 1st; quail or Virginia partridge, October 15; pheasant, October 1st. Woodcock and plover are now in season, the law being "out," on the former since July 4th and the latter since July 15th. We don't know what other game is in season, but we saw Rev. James P. Hughes boarding the train on Thursday night fully equipped for a hunting expedition. If he brings home either a fox, hare, squirrel, rabbit, quail, partridge or pheasant he will add the amount of a fine to the county treasury. He must be satisfied with a woodcock or plover.

—A new variety of watermelon, heretofore almost unknown, has been placed in the market. It is called the ice rind melon and was imported from Cuba by dealers in the South, and most of them are now raised by a firm in Nanticoke, Md. It is a light colored, orange shaped melon of uncommon sweetness, and in spite of their high price, find a ready sale.

—A representative of the "other side" informs us that the strike among the miners in Snow Shoe was not caused by a refusal on the part of the company to give the miners the privilege of a check-weighman, but that they have always had that privilege, the company only refusing to pay the salary of this individual. This somewhat changes the aspect of affair.

—Ex-Governor Curtin is again showing his public spirit and liberality in distributing valuable seeds from the agricultural department at Washington among his constituents in this district. We are told that there are now 180 bags of what is know as Rice wheat at Alexander & Co.'s agricultural implement and feed warehouse, which were sent there by the Governor for the benefit of the farmers of this county. They can obtain a large supply of it by calling on Alexander & Co., and we recommend them to give it a trial.

—The residence of Thomas Strouse, near Lemont, was entered by tramps one day recently and all the edibles which the house contained were carried away.

BELLEFONTE, Pa., Aug. 22, 1882.

The members of the Republican County Executive Committee wil meet at the office of the chairman at Bellefonte, on Saturday, September 2, 1882, at 2 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of fixing the time and place for holding the County Convention and transacting such other business as may be brought before them.

D. H. HASTINGS, Chairman.
WILBUR F. REEDER,
J. I. HAGERMAN,
Secretaries.

Death of Mrs. Bond Valentine.

Mrs. Valentine, wife of our townsman, Mr. Bond Valentine, died at Ocean Grove Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Her body was brought to this place on the evening train on Saturday. This will be a severe blow to her many friends, who did not suppose the lady was so near death's door. We sympathize with the afflicted husband in his bereavement.

—Mrs. Elizabeth Bitner, relict of the late Joseph Bitner, died at her home at Centre Hall on Friday morning. She was a sister of Dr. Neff, whose death occurred quite suddenly about a year ago. One daughter survives to mourn her death. The funeral was held Sunday morning at 9 o'clock.

—A letter in the Bellefonte post-office, addressed "Bellefonte Plow Company, Bellefonte, Pa.," would be all right if there was any company with that title to claim it. Whom is it intended for? That's the question.

—Among our death notices to-day is that of Mr. Adam Stover, of Miles township. Strange to relate, his birth, marriage and death all took place on the same day of the year, August 16.

—Thanks for the copious showers of rain formed a part of the services in the Episcopal church on Sunday morning.
